China Delays Parley

Soviet Call
'5 Years Early'

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China today denounced the Soviet Union's proposal for an international conference of Communist parties this fall as part of a plot "to accelerate an open split in the international Communist movement."

A Peking broadcast said such a meeting is not likely within the next four or five years "or even longer."

Peking made the statement in rejecting a Soviet timetable calling for a preparatory Chinese-Soviet meeting this month, to be followed by an international conference of Communist parties in the fall to deal with the split between the two Communist giants.

In a letter sent Thursday to the Soviet Communist party, the Chinese Communists suggested a year from now would be the most appropriate time for a meeting between their two parties.

Peking declared an international meeting of Communist parties required a series of preparatory steps to make it a success.

"Judging by present circumstances," said a New China news agency broadcast monitored in Tokyo, "it might require perhaps four to five years, or even longer, to complete these preparations."

Communist China gave its position in publishing seven letters exchanged between Moscow and Peking since November, 1963.

"Judging by present circumstances, not only is it impossible to hold the two-party talks in May, but it will also be too early to hold them in October," the Chinese reply said.

"We consider it more appropriate to postpone them until sometime in the first half of next year, say May. And if either the Chinese or the Soviet party then considers that the time is still not ripe, they can be further postponed."

Strategic Peaks Held By British

ADEN (Reuters) — British troops were holding two strategic peaks in their operation to secure the tortuous trade route from Aden to Dhala in the north of the South Arabia Federation, a British Middle East command spokesman said here today.

The route runs through the Radfan area where dissident tribesmen have killed four British soldiers in clashes recently.

The British spokesman said that Thursday was the second quiet day for the combined British and Arab force following their successful battle on Tuesday for control of the vital trade route.

The British-backed South Arabia Federation faced obstruction of the trade route by dissident Red Wolf tribesmen backed by the neighboring republic of Yemen.

New Quake Rocks Japan

TOKYO (Reuters) — Part of northern Japan was shaken by an earthquake today only hours after a stronger earthquake split open the earth, sunk sections of land and sent geysers shooting into the air in some areas.

The first earthquake, which opened fissures of up to 30 yards long, registered four on a scale of seven, the Japanese meteorological agency said. The second earthquake today registered three.

'Answer in Few Days' On Alberni Request

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A federal government reply will be given "in the next few days" to a B.C. government request for $750,000 in federal aid to victims of the Good Friday Alberni flood.

Northern Affairs and Resources Minister Arthur Laing told the Commons today he had received a wire from Premier Bennett placing the total amount of aid required at $1.5 million.

The premier, he said, proposed that Ottawa provide half, or $750,000.

"This will be discussed and some reply given in the matter in the next few days," Mr. Laing said.

He was answering a question from Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni), who asked if Mr. Laing had received any further word on aid from "the trigger happy and temperamental premier of B.C."

In his reply, Mr. Laing said he did not accept the adjectives used by Mr. Barnett.

AFTER YEAR behind Iron Curtain U.S. Army Capt. Alfred Svenson, 31, was handed back Thursday by the Soviets. He was immediately placed in military custody in West Germany while his case is investigated. The army did not say why the Russians turned him back. Svenson disappeared into East Germany May 4, 1963, and, according to the Russians, asked for asylum.

18 KILLED IN MANILA EXPLOSIONS

MANILA (AP) — Two explosions set a six-story building afire in Manila's crowded market district today, killing at least 18 persons.

Capt. Eduardo Giron of the fire investigation division said 18 bodies had been recovered.

Giron said police reports that 35 had died were speculation. But he said no one had been able to enter the two top floors and possibly more bodies would be found.

Banks Out on Bail Until Appeal Heard

MONTREAL (CP) — Hal C. Banks was liberated today on $25,000 cash bail, pending appeal on his recent conviction on a charge of conspiracy.

Mr. Justice Lucien Tremblay, chief judge of the Quebec Court of Appeal, said "it would have been difficult to justify Banks' detention."

Banks, former president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), was convicted May 1 of conspiring to wound or maim Capt. Henry Francis Walsh, a rival union organizer.

Cpt. Walsh was beaten up behind a hotel in Owen Sound, Ont., Aug. 18, 1957, following differences with the SIU.

Banks' appeal is to be heard at the September term of the appeal court. Mr. Justice Tremblay said the bail will end Sept. 14.

Victoria May Get Pro Hockey Again

Move Reported If Denver Fails

Victoria may get professional hockey again next season.

Reports out of the Western Hockey League annual meeting in Seattle say Victoria Cougars would be revived to replace the floundering Denver Invaders.

Jim Kearney, Vancouver Sun columnist, said the Cougars "probably will return to the Western Hockey League for one or two years."

Kearney says Denver is not expected to meet a quota of season ticket sales set by the league as the price of its survival.

Denver is reported to have lost $105,000 last season in its first year of operation and must sell 2,000 season tickets in the next six weeks to retain a WHL franchise.

Kearney says Denver's chances are negligible and the team will be moved to Victoria and thus the franchise would be kept "warm" for probable move to San Diego in a couple of seasons. Other WHL teams would guarantee receipts of $187,000 in Victoria, cutting possible losses by the franchise owners—Toronto Maple Leafs.

Cougars have been absent from the league for four years, since Jim Piggott took the club to California and established the Los Angeles Blades.

League president Al Leader was in a closed-door meeting in Seattle at noon today and could not be reached for comment.

LIKES IDEA

"I haven't heard anything since last fall," said Jack Morgan, manager of Memorial Arena.

"I had a talk with Leader at that time and told him we would entertain the idea of having a team here. The rest of the teams seemed to prefer a team in Victoria instead of Denver."

"I hope this report is true. I would welcome the return of pro hockey and I am sure hockey fans in the city would, too."

Suspect Arrested

OTTAWA (CP) — A man wanted on bank-robbery charges in both Vancouver and Outremont, Que., was arrested in Ottawa today, Nelson Lepage, 32, of Levis, Que., was arrested by a CNR constable in Union Station and was booked on a robbery charge at the city police station.

HELLYER

CAMBODIAN TANK WINS BORDER CLASH

SAIGON (AP) — A Cambodian tank knocked out a South Vietnamese armored personnel carrier in a border clash today and captured the vehicle and its crew.

Military sources said at least 10 other South Vietnamese vehicles were poised on the frontier, ready to move in and retake the personnel carrier if ordered to do so. It appeared doubtful, however, that the order would be given.

HELLYER SAYS

Single Chief Defence Key

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer said today that without a single chief of defence staff the defence department would find its proposed integration of the armed forces "virtually impossible."

Opening a wide-ranging defence debate in the Commons centred on changes in the defence act for integration of the services, Mr. Hellyer said perhaps the most important of the changes is the abolition of chiefs of staff for each service.

Integration meant a saving of $100,000,000 annually in the defence budget. Another $100,000,000 would be diverted for the purchase of weapons.

The minister said 10,000 servicemen would be affected by integration, many of them now performing tasks duplicated in the three forces. This included 20 per cent of the 50,000 men at national defence and other command headquarters.

The end result would be a more streamlined force at no loss of efficiency or effectiveness.

NO REFLECTION

Mr. Hellyer said the early retirement of some officers and men was no reflection on their loyalty and courage. They had served Canada well and the armed forces of the country compared with the best in the world.

Integration also meant new career opportunities for men now serving and younger men coming into the force. There was still the need for recruiting and he urged members to encourage young men to look into service careers.

The new look in the armed forces also raised the need for a strong civilian staff. But his task would be simplified by integration since the flow of information now would be coming from one source and not several as at present.

MORE ADVISERS

On civilian control, Mr. Hellyer said he intends to revamp the defence council, adding additional civilian advisers, to make it the departmental policy review board where all matters of important policy will be considered.

The defence council in recent years had not been acting in this capacity and had tended to meet less and less frequently.

Earlier the Commons, without debate, agreed to reconstitute its special defence committee which inquired into defence matters during the last session.

Mr. Hellyer said the committee hearings had resulted in a better-informed Commons and general public, and also had raised the level of debate on defence matters in Parliament.

Shooting on Cyprus

NICOSIA (Reuters) — Shooting broke out three times today in the Turkish-Cypriot town of Lourdjina, southeast of here and a UN patrol moved into arrange a cease-fire. One Turkish-Cypriot was wounded in the back, but not seriously.

Ousted Servicemen Get Bonus

OTTAWA (CP) — Service personnel who are retired in advance of their normal retirement age because of job-cutting integration procedures will get a special cash benefit of up to 10 months' pay, Associate Defence Minister Cardin told the Commons today.

The special benefit will apply immediately to 500 RCAF officers who are being retired this year as surplus personnel.

It would mean, for example, up to $7,300 for a squadron leader.

The special benefit is in lieu of the pay and pension benefits a serviceman would expect to receive if he was not forcibly retired before his normal time. It is subject to income tax at regular rates.

Mr. Cardin said the government recognizes that forcible retirement may place a serviceman "in a position of undue hardship." The special benefit would be designed to help him readjust and obtain civilian employment.

The top 10-month pay benefit, to be paid in a cash bonus, will go to those servicemen with 15½ years of service who have five or more years to go before normal retirement.

The bonus will scale down from this ceiling according to length of service and distance from retirement age.

Integration of the three armed services into a single defence force is expected to eliminate 10,000 defence personnel — mostly servicemen — in the next two years. The armed forces now have 122,000.

Slush Fund Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons privileges committee held a preliminary skirmish today on how widely its members will range in investigating statements by Gerard Giron (PC—Labellé) that a fat election campaign fund was proposed as a benefit for switching his allegiance to the Liberal party from Social Credit.

Soviet Will Help Sukarno In Bid to Crush Malaysia

JAKARTA (AP) — The official news agency Antara said today the Soviet Union has promised to help Indonesia crush the federation of Malaysia.

Antara said Soviet Ambassador N. A. Michailov promised "the Soviet government and people will keep on helping the Indonesian people in their campaign to crush the neo-colonialist project of Malaysia."

The report added that he affirmed "the Soviet support to the Indonesian struggle is concrete and not merely in words." Michailov was reported to have added that "the Soviet aid is extended within the framework of helping the Afro-Asian peoples to achieve their national independence and realizing their national developments."

Indonesian President Sukarno's two-point "action command" to his anti-Malaysia volunteers, calls for: Indonesian support for the peoples of the Malaysia Federation states to dissolve the new nation, and, to intensify domestic vigilance against subversion.

BOOST CAMPAIGN?

It was not immediately known whether the Soviet ambassador's reported promise meant an increase of Soviet arms aid to Indonesia for the implementation of the crush Malaysia campaign.

The Soviet Union has supplied Indonesia with most of her modern military weapons, including jet planes, tanks and naval vessels. Western estimates of the value range upward from $500,000,000.

At a birthday party for President Sukarno at Moscow in 1962 Soviet Premier Khrushchev turned out his pockets to indicate Indonesian demands for more were keeping him broke.

In Tokyo, before Antara reported the Soviet pledge, British Foreign Minister R. A. Butler was quoted as saying he saw no solution to the problem until Sukarno halted military activities and recognized the Indonesian federalism.

Sweden Likes Neutrality Enough to Fight for It

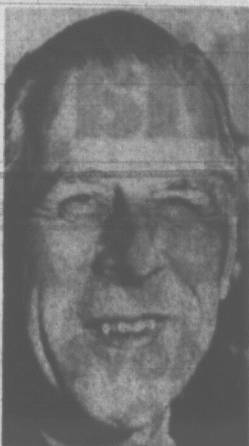

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Sweden plans to remain neutral in the event of a third world war, Swedish ambassador Regnvald Bagge said here Thursday.

She is proud of her record as a peaceful neutral for more than 150 years, yet has the world's fourth strongest air force after the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain.

"We make no apology for our neutrality in the last two world wars," the ambassador said. "We are proud of it and our basic aim is to remain neutral should there be another war."

"The people of Sweden are overwhelmingly in favor of neutrality. At the same time we feel we are an influence for peace and we will continue to exert our efforts in that direction."

Should Sweden be threatened, he explained, she has more than 1,000 jet planes backed by a network of modern radar stations stretched over a 1,700-mile coastline.

"We are prepared to defend our neutrality," the tall, grey-haired ambassador said.

Mr. Bagge arrived at the Empress Hotel Thursday afternoon and, after a quick lunch, walked over to Premier Bennett's office in the Legislative Buildings.

"I have heard that your premier is a very strong man," he said.

The premier received Mr. Bagge immediately.

"We had a most interesting talk," the ambassador said afterward. "We have an even trade balance with Canada and the premier was happy about this. He said British Columbia has much in common with Sweden because we produce the same kind of wood products."

"I told him there are 98,000 people of Swedish descent living in Canada. Yet no one leaves Sweden today. We have a labor shortage and no one is unemployed."

The ambassador has a special interest in Canada, since he was born in Quebec City. His father was Sweden's first consul-general in Canada, but Mr. Bagge spent only the first two years of his life in Quebec. His father was then moved to a diplomatic post in Europe.

RETURNED IN 1936 He did not return to Canada until 1936 when he took a trip across the country and visited Victoria, which he then regarded as one of the very last outposts of Empire.

"At that time I felt this was a good place to rest. Now I feel it is something different—a more alive place," the ambassador said.

He was much interested in the history of British Columbia's Social Credit government, remembering that Swedish industrialist Wenner-Gren had a considerable investment in the province at one time.

"I understand your government has since acquired the surveys of natural resources which were made in the north by the Wenner-Gren company," he said.

Mr. Bagge said the Swedish government would like other countries to enjoy the kind of welfare state its people have enjoyed since 1932—when a labor government was elected to power.

"We have no strikes," he said, "because there is an understanding between labor and management. The strikers get nothing if they strike and the owners get nothing either."

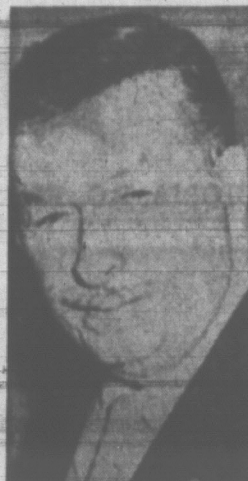

"We have reached a successful rapprochement between management and labor that is the envy of the world."

The Swedish ambassador and his wife were guests of Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George Pearkes at Government House Thursday.

Tonight they are being entertained by the Swedish Canadian Social Group at Holyrood House.

All sour notes were hit Thursday in a six-hour duet in and around the plush New York apartment of bandleader Xavier Cugat and his wife Abbe Lane. It was more of a rumble than a rumba. The Cugats are estranged and for the past week the bandleader has been locked out of the nine-room four-bath apartment. Thursday Cugat and his brother, Henry, sneaked into the apartment behind a maid. Police were called. Then lawyers arrived on the scene. It wound up with Miss Lane retaining possession of the apartment and their two dogs. Cugat has visiting rights to see the animals.

Young B.C. Actor Drowning Victim

VANCOUVER (CP)—A young actor who went from obscurity to lead roles in six months followed an artist's impulse to his death Thursday.

A friend said David Proby, 21, must have fallen seconds after he started to climb Siwash Rock in Stanley Park, "to see how Pauline Johnson got up there to write her poetry."

Proby's body was recovered from the waters of English Bay by fire department skin divers and a police boat.

Proby's head was bruised but an autopsy showed death was from drowning.

The companion, 23-year-old Graeme Cline, said Proby took off his shoes and waded across a 25-foot shallow stretch of water to the rock. "He yelled back to me to come too, and as I was taking off my shoes he walked around the left side of the rock."

BODY SIGHTED "Then I heard two fellows yelling and saw them pointing down at the rock from a lookout high on a cliff above the rock —

Quick Answer Asked on Aid

The mayors of the flood-stricken Albernis Thursday called on Ottawa for a prompt and favorable answer to B.C.'s proposal for disaster aid.

They said they were pleased with Premier W. A. C. Bennett's plan to pay $750,000 with Ottawa contributing a similar sum.

First cheques could go out late next week if Ottawa approves.

"We are anxiously awaiting a reply from Ottawa and we hope it will be prompt and favorable," said Mayor Les Hamner of Port Alberni.

He said the $1,500,000 would pay 100 cents on the dollar of the assessment of damage made by independent appraisers.

However, this would not be enough money to replace flooded homes with new ones, Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni said.

Mayor Bishop said some people may get more than 100 per cent of their assessments because of more than $300,000 in private contributions now on deposit in a Port Alberni bank.

It may also prove necessary to compensate for property, Mr. Bishop said, because the twin cities are studying whether people should move back into the area which was flooded.

The two mayors met Premier Bennett for three quarters of an hour.

"It appears we made real progress today," Mayor Bishop said afterwards.

"We are very pleased with the action the provincial government has taken — we just hope Ottawa will be as generous," Mayor Bishop said.

A cabinet-appointed disaster committee will meet as soon as possible to discuss how to pay out the money. The mayors said they planned to get in touch with its chairman, Ed Benson of Vancouver, immediately. But the meeting may be delayed until Ottawa replies to Mr. Bennett's telegram asking for the $750,000.

Meanwhile the highways department is planning a new road along the shoreline 3½ feet higher than the old one, washed out by tidal waves after the Good Friday Alaska earthquake.

U.K. Labor Hails Civic Vote Gains

LONDON (Reuters) — Opposition Labor party leaders today hailed Labor's success in widespread municipal voting Thursday as a forerunner of a landslide victory in the general election this fall.

With the bulk of the returns in from municipal elections throughout England and Wales, Labor had not only won control in a majority of the 32 new London boroughs forming the "parent" Greater London Council but also had a net gain of 254 seats in voting for city and town councils in the provinces.

The deputy Labor party leader, George Brown, told reporters the returns meant that his party, out of power in Parliament since 1951, would score a landslide general election triumph over Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home's Conservatives.

Party General Secretary Len Williams commented that if the municipal voting pattern held in the general election which Douglas-Home is expected to set for October, Labor should smash in with a majority of well over 100 seats in the 630-member House of Commons.

TREND CONTINUES

Voting Thursday showed a continuation of the leftward swing reflected in last month's elections for 53 county councils. It also jibed with new public opinion poll figures giving Labor a 17 per cent popularity lead over the Conservatives.

In the voting outside London, the Conservatives lost 132 seats, Independents dropped 64 and Liberals dipped by 59.

One important outcome was that Labor, which earlier feared the creation of the Greater London Council would end its long domination of local government here, saw its position in the capital consolidated.

Last month Labor won 64 seats against the Conservatives' 36 in the first elections for the Greater London Council. Now, with Thursday's voting, was assured of control in a majority of the 32 individual and enlarged local councils within the parent body.

The new Greater London Council swallows up the existing London County Council in which Labor had a two-to-one majority as well as the old metropolitan boroughs, all but seven of them Labor-controlled.

Oak Bay's Tea Party Water Show

Oak Bay's tea party will take the form of a two-day giant beach party this year with aquatic events highlighting the program.

The party, scheduled for June 5 and 6, will feature children's rides, a midway and a tea party in Willows Park.

Main attraction will be the annual swim from Mary Tod Island, which this year will finish at Willows Beach.

Other events include a display of water skiing by the Victoria Aqua Ski Club and a display and regatta by the Inboard-Outboard Club.

Coinciding with the beach party, planned by the Oak Bay community celebrations committee, will be the 20th anniversary reunion of Oak Bay High School. On Saturday the graduates of 1944 will congregate at the tea party.

GHETTO OF DESPAIR

Harlem Negroes Set to Explode

NEW YORK (AP) — This city's Harlem district, which contains the largest concentration of Negroes in the U.S., emerges in a government-financed report as a ghetto of despair.

And the report warns that unless the white man does something soon to correct the situation, Harlem's residents might try to soothe their frustrations with violence.

"We don't want any bloodshed if we can help it," one youthful resident of Harlem told researchers for Harlem Youth Opportunities Unlimited (Har-YOU).

"But if there has to be a little blood-letting, well and good," he added.

SHARE THE COST

It was one of hundreds of interviews conducted by Har-YOU in the 3½ square miles of Manhattan tenements that make up Harlem.

The study cost $330,000. The city and federal governments shared the cost. The 614-page Crusader Division 254C, St. John Ambulance, will be holding a car wash Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Quadra Street Safeway parking lot, between Kings Road and Hillside Avenue.

copyrighted report, issued Thursday, summed up: "Massive deterioration of the fabric of society and its institutions is indicated by the findings of this study."

Researchers said they found among Harlem's residents "socially engendered ferment, resentment, stagnation and potentially explosive reactions to powerlessness and continued abuse."

The report, entitled Youth in the Ghetto, recommended reforms in education, employment, family stabilization and community improvement if the area's residents are to be drawn into the mainstream of productivity.

A similar program has been approved in Washington by the president's committee on juvenile delinquency and crime at an estimated cost of $110,000,000 over a three-year period. It hasn't been implemented.

Caribbean Conundrum

PRESIDENT JOHNSON HAS made headlines with his assurance that the United States ban on trade with Cuba is being effective, as well as with his regret that America's allies have not co-operated "all the way."

This phase of United States foreign policy has been a difficult one for that country's friends, including Canada, to follow. United States concern with the presence of a Communist state immediately off the coast of Florida is readily recognized by the Western democracies. Equally appreciated is the possibility that Premier Castro will attempt to extend his Communist influence over nearby Latin American countries, and the implications that such a development would carry. The American predicament is well known.

But against these considerations, and the wish to co-operate with President Johnson, is the obvious fact that Cuba is not in a state of war with Canada, Britain, France or other democracies, that apart from the matter of strategic materials there is no clear legal or economic reason why a Cuban request to purchase goods should not be filled. The question of whether or not to trade with Cuba devolves into the degree of seriousness with which the prospective vendor views the existence of a Communist island in the Caribbean.

Obviously, to European lands which live very close to Communist neighbors, Cuba may appear to be a minor threat. The possibility of Castro-led expansion may be viewed much more calmly by such countries than it is viewed by the United States. And there is the ever-present need to expand export sales, even to Communist lands, as the growing trade between democratic nations and Russia, Red China, eastern Europe and other Marxist countries demonstrates.

Mr. Johnson, in his press conferences, sketched briefly what his under-secretary of state, Mr. George Ball, had gone into more fully in a speech two weeks ago. Mr. Ball told a Virginia audience of the federal government's belief that Premier Castro had definite ambitions to carry his ideology and his personal power into Latin America as a "liberator." Premier Castro is seen as a willing instrument for world Communism—as, indeed, a man who must undertake such adventures in order to hold the loyalty of his followers.

Mr. Ball suggested the ways in which the United States might nullify this time bomb in the Caribbean. Direct military action to replace the Castro regime with another government would hardly be tolerated by the United States' friends and certainly not by the Soviet Union. An enforced blockade would also be interpreted as an act of war at this point, with inevitable repercussions.

Negotiation, said Mr. Ball, faced two apparently insuperable obstacles. The United States will not retreat from the position that Premier Castro must abandon his dependence on Russia, and that he must discontinue all subversive activities in Latin America. The present evidence is that these points would never be agreed to.

With war impossible and negotiation pointless, said Mr. Ball, two courses remain. First, Washington must strengthen the Latin American states to help them resist Communist encroachment—and this involves improving their economic and social conditions as well as their defences.

Secondly, the United States must make every effort to weaken the Castro regime so that it will be less likely to try to undertake subversion in this hemisphere.

This the United States is trying to achieve through causing as much economic trouble as possible for the Cuban government. The collapse of various phases of industry and transportation as machinery wears out, the encouragement of public discontent with the regime, the demonstration of Premier Castro's inability to bring prosperity to the island as long as he pursues his Communist course—these are the objectives of current United States policy.

Obviously, they are being hampered by the trade policies of America's allies. Shipments of British buses, French locomotives or Canadian machinery help to bolster the Cuban economy and postpone the day of breakdown. They also lower the cost to Russia of keeping the Castro ship of state afloat.

The policy of "economic denial" has therefore become a major issue in the Western camp. Most countries will agree with the United States' objectives but beg to be excused from the responsibilities of helping to achieve them. Will economic denial merely confirm Premier Castro in his Communism? Will trade, even of a limited nature, encourage him to maintain contacts with the West, and also encourage the people of Cuba to believe that the free world is not determined to drive them to destruction?

These are difficult questions. But too long a delay in their answers may create a serious breach between the United States and its friends.

On the Job

THE EPIDEMIC OF VIOLENCE, break-ins and other hoodlums that has afflicted the community particularly during the past few weeks is an obvious demonstration of the sickness that affects many young men and women today, quite apart from the more serious criminal elements among us.

Catching the culprits and dealing with them—either through punishment for their law-breaking or treatment for their mental and emotional deficiencies—does not get at the root of the problem. The factors that cause these pathetic creatures to act the way they do must be sought out long before the individual stands in court to answer to the society on which he wars. But for those who have taken the wrong route, early apprehension affords at least a hope of salvage, as well as protection for the community.

Prisoners Seldom Talk Back

IT IS THE PREROGATIVE OF a magistrate to address personal remarks to accused persons before him. Frequently the individual so addressed deserves a tongue-lashing. Occasionally acid comment from the bench may have some beneficial result.

Magistrate Les Bewley, of Vancouver, seems, however, to be unfortunate in his exercise of this privilege. Early this year he addressed an unmarried mother who appeared before him in terms that offended many people.

Now he has told a repeater charged with being drunk—an accused whose legs have been amputated below the knees—that he "would be better off if police picked you up and put you in a garbage can."

The fact that the amputee seems inclined to agree does nothing to soften the magistrate's remark.

Does this increase public respect for the courts?

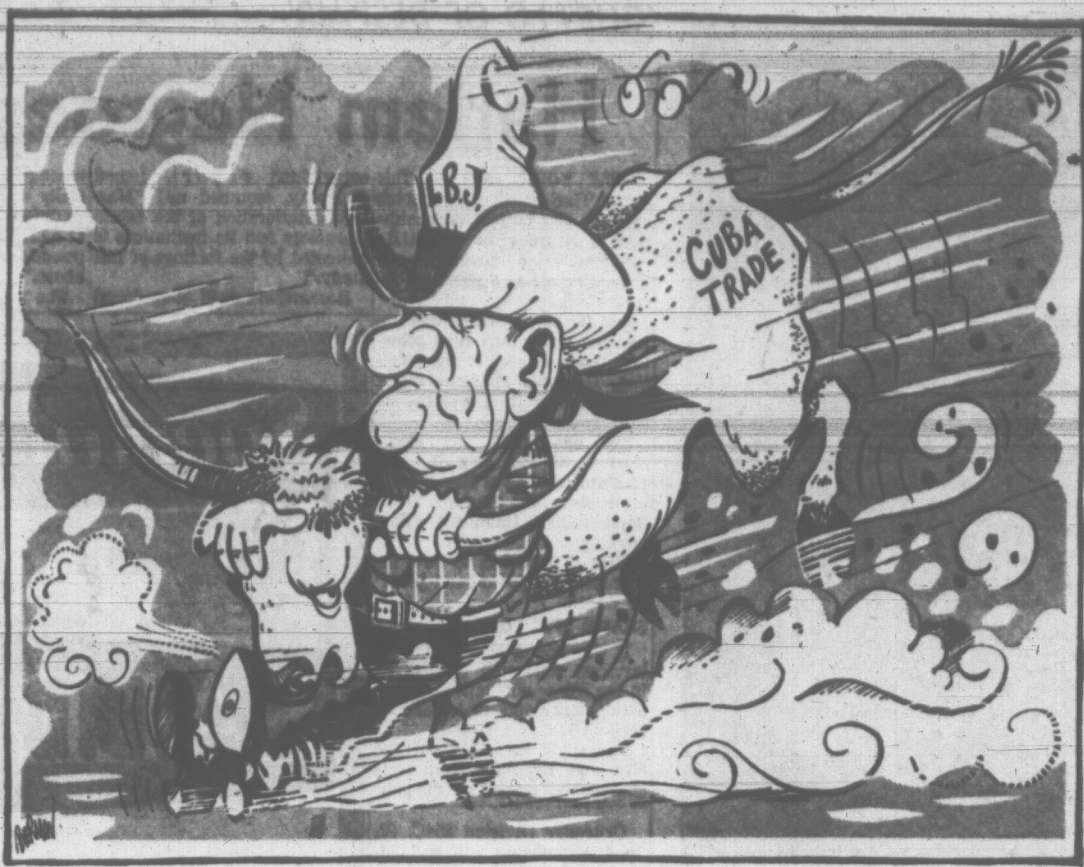

A 'Happy Coat' for Dinner?

TAILOR AND CUTTER, THE magazine which assumes authority to speak for British tailors, expects heavy competition in the immediate future from Japanese in the trade.

Already the Japanese tailors, says the British publication, are embarked on a campaign to persuade every Japanese man to buy a new suit for the Olympic Games. The prosperity and interest such a campaign could produce might very well encourage the Japanese to move farther afield in the export of made-up goods—and possibly to influence style.

Which offers some promise of greater comfort for the well-dressed man at dinner. Who would willingly wear the collar and tie of a dinner-jacket outfit if he could sit down to a meal in the gay, loose and attractive "happy coat" used on some occasions for the Japanese banquet?

FROM OTTAWA

Wearing 'Privilege' Threadbare

A VISITOR from a foreign country might be excused for concluding, after a few days in the national capital, that the primary interest of the House of Commons is neither the state of the economy nor that of the world but a mysterious subject known as privilege.

While the nature of this subject might well elude him, a check with Hansard will undoubtedly show that it is a matter of absorbing interest to many members, especially in the Opposition parties. This has nothing to do, incidentally, with points of privilege raised in debates which are often mere protests, objections or camouflaged points of order.

One day Examination of Hansard will show that by the 56th day of the present session, no less than 48 formal questions of privilege had been brought to the attention of the House. There is some duplication here because the count includes four rulings by Mr. Speaker on points reserved for study. On the other hand one would not expect such distractions on the first two days of the session which are given over largely to formalities. This means that the House has been coming reasonably close to a question of privilege a day.

Some of these are perfectly legitimate. The best recent example was that of April 28 when Mr. Knowles formally drew the attention of the House to statements made by Mr. Girouard, the Social Credit recruit to Conservative ranks, and by Mr. Keith Davey, the Liberal organizer. Mr. Knowles followed through with a motion referring the matter to the committee on privileges and elections, and this was duly passed.

There are other cases in which the member concerned at least made out a serious case, deserving of Mr. Speaker's attention. On April 22, Mr. Herridge of Kootenay West protested in the House against certain remarks made by Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, in evidence before the external affairs committee and in a letter to an Ottawa newspaper.

Mr. Herridge felt that these remarks were a challenge to the ancient rights and privileges of Parliament and buttressed his argument with precedents going back to 1667. He too presented a motion although it was simply declaratory and would neither have transferred the matter to the committee on privileges nor have summoned Dr. Keenleyside to the bar of the House. Mr. Speaker, after due consideration, ruled that the proposition could not be considered one of privilege.

But these cases are interesting precisely because they are so exceptional. It is far more common for Mr. Speaker to explain patiently that the alleged question of "privilege affecting the rights of all honorable members of the House" is in fact a simple grievance, concerning perhaps some newspaper comment or erroneous report.

The House, of course, is jealous of its privileges and has an undoubted though rarely exercised right to punish offenders. There are several classic cases including that of Elie Tasse in 1873, Cling-Mars in 1906 and Miller in 1913, which stand as reminders that Parliament can still function as a high court. But very few points of privilege are raised with any intention of launching serious proceedings or even of securing a referral to the committee on privileges.

Greatly Abused It seems evident that the rules in this respect are greatly abused, and perhaps this is one of the questions which deserves the attention of the committee studying House procedures. Even so the likelihood of any major reform seems remote. For until a member has exercised his right to state his question of privilege, it is impossible for Mr. Speaker or anyone else to say whether it has any justification.

Since the mere statement often serves the purpose of the member concerned, it is doubtful if any new rule could accomplish much in the absence of a higher sense of responsibility among the members generally.

The interesting fact is that some of the most respected members on both sides of the House are men who seldom, if ever, depress their colleagues by bringing alleged points of privilege to the attention of Mr. Speaker.

Whitehall's chief fear at the moment is that discussion of development may fade into the background if the conference succumbs to the African members' obsession with the immediate racial problem of Southern Rhodesia. The plan afoot here to stage off this possibility is to deal with Southern Rhodesia only at the conference's final session, and to keep Southern Rhodesia, Premier Ian Smith out of the conference hall until then, when he could be permitted to state his case. It is feared that his presence at the opening session, when the conference traditionally surveys world affairs, would provoke the Africans and turn the conference into a shambles at the start.

Whitehall believes it can get African consent for Mr. Smith to appear when his country is discussed, but this may require some bargaining. Britain may be asked to invite also Mr. Kenneth Kaunda of Northern Rhodesia, which is not yet fully independent, and possibly also to put pressure on the Southern Rhodesian government to free detained African leader Joshua Nkomo.

With or without Mr. Smith in Marlborough House, Britain will be on the block over Southern Rhodesia. African Commonwealth states would like Britain to call a conference on Southern Rhodesia's independence constitution, to be attended by leaders of all parties. Britain fears an explosion if this is done. Everyone fears an explosion if it is not done. Britain's greatest difficulty at the conference will be to successfully keep up the pretence (as the Africans see it) of inability to interfere in Southern Rhodesia's internal affairs.

The potentially divisive Southern Rhodesian race issue may be joined by others. African Commonwealth states are concerned at Britain's failure to support sanctions against South Africa and Portugal. Britain is under fire for maintaining what some members see as colonialism's last stand in southern Arabia and British Guiana.

White Extremist These racial problems give rise to strange attitudes in Britain, where the public is having some difficulty adapting itself to understand the new Commonwealth. The extreme view holds that in the long run the colored are the white's natural foes, and that Britain's interests are best served by supporting "our kith and kin"—the standard cant phrase meaning the white minorities in Southern Rhodesia and South Africa, and for that matter in Portuguese Africa.

This view is regularly upheld by one widely-read London columnist, and is very nearly shared by the Beaverbrook press, which, however, looks on Africans more as children than as enemies.

The extreme sentimental view was well stated by a leading British right-wing politician, the Marquess of Salisbury, in a letter to The Times: "Let us not forget that, 25 years ago, we in this country were in desperate straits. A powerful and ruthless enemy was at our very doors, and most of the outside world thought that we were finished. At that moment of peril, although they live five thousand miles away and were themselves in no direct danger at all, the Southern Rhodesians, purely out of loyalty to this country rushed to stand by our side."

There are many of us who cannot feel very proud of the way we are treating them when it is they who are in peril. Sometimes, in these days, CON-

'Bert' Thomas

The passing of my friend Mr. Bert Thomas is a heavy loss indeed.

Let anyone should get a wrong impression of this fine man, I would like to say this:

If Magistrate Thomas was "harsh" in his dealings with culprits, it was because he felt that pandering and permissiveness was not the answer to their problems.

Harshness should not be mistaken for injustice, and perhaps, had the younger inmates of our prisons been brought up short by stiffer punishment for misdemeanors they might not be behind bars today for more serious crimes.

One did not always agree with Mr. Thomas, and wrong doers for the most part most certainly would not, but one had to respect him.

He has left his mark and served his generation. No man can do more.

A Trash Burner

Surely the Vancouver civic employees' strike points up the antiquated method of disposing of our garbage which is undoubtedly a major problem of urban life.

I have installed an old-fashioned round iron stove in my kitchen into which I throw all my waste combustibles.

The idea of a burning "ghat" in our garden is messy in the extreme with a constant fire hazard. Smoke annoys the neighbors and ourselves. With a trash burner stove the smoke goes up the chimney, the fire hazard, with ordinary care at all, is nil. We still have bones, bottles and cans to dispose of, but these are minor chores.

Lonely Shut-Ins

I am taking this opportunity to bring to the attention of the citizens of this fair city "The Forgotten Few."

I am sure that our fraternal, religious and welfare organizations have not realized that we have in this city many private hospitals catering to the aged and infirm. Some of these patients are on welfare, some are not, but they are the pioneers who, through their efforts and struggles, laid the foundation for this fair and thriving city.

But, to the best of my knowledge, no welfare organization visits them; no fraternal organization visits; and rarely, if ever, does a religious organization.

Therefore I beg all public-minded people to give these poor shut-in pioneers just half an hour a month of time to cheer them up, for they are more lonely and forlorn than the criminals in our jails.

Take them a few dixie-cups, biscuits or fruit, something that is not on their regular menu and it will do your heart good to see their faces light up.

In spite of the fact that they receive the best and most kind attention from the staff they feel that they are isolated from the outside world.

Since there are a number of such private hospitals in town won't some organization take the responsibility of organizing a volunteer visiting committee?

It Works Both Ways

Sherbrooke La Tribune:

When the Russians proclaim their peaceful intentions we have serious reasons for doubting their sincerity and requiring proof before trusting their statements.

It is in order to ask ourselves, however, whether the Russians are not justified in having similar reactions to statements of the same kind from the West, particularly the United States.

The president of the U.S. recently announced an impending reduction of fissionable material output for the manufacture of nuclear weapons. Mr. Johnson represented this decision as a new manifestation of his desire for peace.

The next day the American military services made known the existence of an eminently toxic gas called neurotrope, capable of killing several million persons in a single minute. Not only was the existence of this gas revealed, but it was disclosed at the same time that significant supplies had been built up in the last three years.

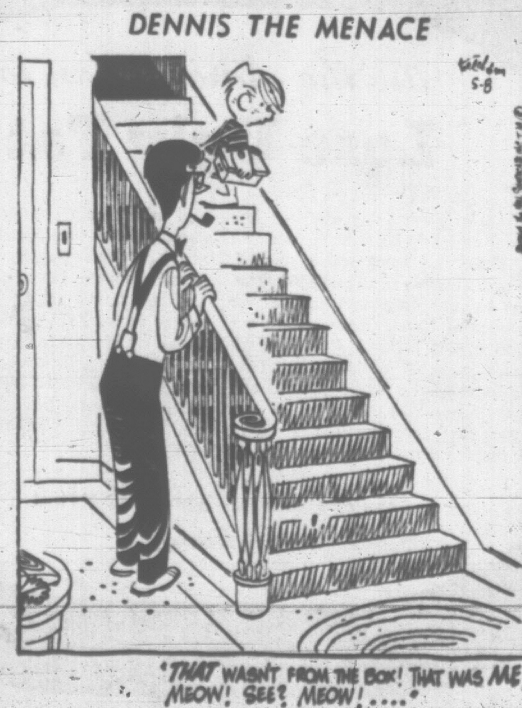

It is difficult not to see the contrast between the presidential declaration and the revelations on the subject of the gas. What one gives with one hand in the matter of disarmament, one gives the clear impression of taking away with the other. We can see in this attitude a lack of sincerity. The Russians will even see hypocrisy in it and perhaps they will not be entirely wrong.

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

The year-long restraint of the Hon. Jack Pickersgill shattered before the millions who watch the television news. Mr. Pickersgill fumed and sputtered in his old style. He had a devil to exorcise: the wicked, blocking Opposition. It had kept him from giving the House a statement on airlines matters. He was determined to make it anyway and to slash at the evil ones.

It was certain that this would trigger an explosion at the next House sitting. Nothing is so enjoyable to the politicians as a roistering family occasion where they chew over internal bones. When big, real issues are not involved, there comes a freeing of invective and descriptive talent. The debate on the Pickersgill affair was quality stuff. If there was a principle involved, it was rather overlooked in the furore.

'Disgusting Conduct'

I believe that there was a principle at the root of it all. It is a shaky one: that the Commons has an over-riding priority on policy and information statements.

The Conservative motion, following the Pickersgill tantrum, stated: "That this House condemns the actions of ministers from time to time in announcing outside the House policy decisions which should be announced in the House... such action being a flagrant disregard of the customs, practices and privileges of this House and its members."

Erik Nielsen led the assault on Mr. Pickersgill's "disgusting conduct." He said: "... we should not submit to having to read announcements of government policy in the press."

Even Mr. Pickersgill conceded something to this idea. In his defence he argued: "... If I had anything to say which would have led immediately to legislation, I think it would have been a discourtesy to the House to make it elsewhere."

The Tory motion was not acceptable to the Speaker. His ruling was appealed by the Tories and the appeal was lost, only the appeals voting for it.

I have noted that the Opposition, always, and the government, in general, do accept the prior right of the House to policy statements. Yet there is a certain silliness in it. Parliament only meets five days a week and over seven to eight months of a year. Both policy and information must break fast on occasion.

Permit for Question

Suppose that just before the end of a session I ask and am permitted to ask an oral question (which therefore should be of "urgency" and "national importance") about the government's pending policy on freight rates. Suppose the answer is "soon" or "under serious consideration." Two weeks later the House has risen and gone. Three weeks later the policy on freight rates is ready and is announced. Much to the enlightenment of railroaders, truckers, etc. I have a quarrel that it was not saved for the House and my right to query it? That would be silly.

Further, it is beyond the capacity of the House when sitting to keep up with or to listen to all the complexities of a government. Releases spew out of departments, agencies, councils and corporations throughout the year. It is difficult to categorize them in terms of urgency and importance. For example, what may be urgent to a member from Cape Breton may be a matter of indifference to Prairie members, and vice versa. It would take a dozen Solomons to decide which government information and policy deserved the priority of the House. It is basically a matter of the government's judgment and the opposition's sensitivity. It has become a modern tradition to assail a government for ignoring the House and its privileges.

The press is deeply involved in this matter. For reasons that go back into press tradition it is still considered important to score a scoop. Why this persists when the wire-service system makes a scoop only a matter of an hour bothers me. Anyway, it is better to have been first with the news than to have the fullest account. Recently, Peter Dempson had a much-admired scoop on the Russian spy expulsion. Don MacGillivray of Southams scooped the rest of the details of Pension Plan No. 3. This points out how hard it is to keep a secret from reporters in order to save it for the Commons. Further, there is a reciprocity in favours between newsmen and ministers. One wants a scoop; the other wants attention and favorable treatment. In addition, the government likes to test or trial-balloons some matters. All these practices conspire against the principle, if it is one, that Parliament has the first privilege.

Of Noise and Power

It does not seem possible to reduce this problem to a formula. Was it right for a press secretary to call in a chosen few reporters for a briefing on topics of keen interest to parliamentarians? My opinion is that it was unfair to the rest of the press, more than it was unfair to us in Parliament. Similarly it seems sensible that any announcement that can be made in the House should be made there, but this cannot mean that the House can determine either specifically or generally how or where the priority privilege runs, with the exception of policy that will lead the legislation which imposes new taxes — e.g., the budget.

The mystery and confusion will probably linger because we are unable to codify the relationship of ministry and House. There is lots of power in the ministry and lots of noise in Parliament. In the Pickersgill case noise could not stop power, but it may have made it seem an abuse.

HOME GARDEN

Bedding Plants Pay Handsome Returns

By HILDA BEASTALL

As soon as day temperatures rise a little, the chief thought in the home gardener's mind is the so-called bedding plants. For their cost, these are certainly the most showy of plant material. Strong, sturdy plants cost from 45 cents to 60 cents for a dozen, according to the length of time elapsed from the time of sowing and in some respect, according to the cost of seed. New varieties cost a fantastic price for good seed.

When planning the use of these annuals, the first point to remember is that they like as much sun as possible, since they must grow to full size and produce quantities of flowers in a few short months before they die in the fall.

The only annuals which tolerate shade to any degree are the schizanthus and lobelia, both flowering well and lasting well with only a few hours of sun. Others do quite well in rather dry positions.

The small marigolds for instance, and alyssum, portulaca and candytuft are all recommended for hot, dry borders and even sloping banks.

WATER FIRST

When the small plants are first put out they must have enough moisture supplied in the soil to enable them to make new roots. Later, watering will be needed only when soil is really dry.

Annual plants respond well to one feeding of a liquid fertilizer watered around the plants about mid-summer, and an occasional soaking during a dry spell will be appreciated in continuing new growths for making more flowers.

Plants such as salvia and zinnias will produce more and more blooms right up to frost if given two liquid feedings. The first can be after the early flowers are well open, and the second about the middle of July.

Prison Camp Doctor Wins Libel 'Award'

LONDON (Reuters) — The judge in the Exodus trial here Wednesday ordered novelist Leon Uris and his British publishers to pay one half-penny damages to Dr. Wladislaw Dering, an Auschwitz death camp prison doctor.

He also ordered that Dering pay all court costs incurred by the defendants after mid-March, when Uris and his publishers paid £2 into court. He ruled that both sides pay their own costs up to mid-March.

Dering left the courtroom immediately after the ruling, making no comment.

Dering, who now has a practice in London, sued Uris and the London publishers of his novel, Exodus, on the grounds that one paragraph in it depicted him as a "monster."

The paragraph said Dering performed 17,000 surgical experiments without anaesthetic on Auschwitz prisoners.

The judge, Sir Frederick Lawton, told the jury they were not concerned with operations in a big London hospital or a nursing home but with operations carried out in a Nazi concentration camp in 1943.

"It may be that he made a wrong choice and it would have been better if he had given a general anaesthetic. Are you to blame him if, in the stress of Auschwitz, he made a wrong choice?" the judge asked the jury.

There was not a shred of evidence, the judge continued, to support the statement in Exodus that said Dering performed 17,000 experiments in surgery without anaesthetic.

He said this was conceded by the defendants and that the highest they put the allegation was that he performed a number of experiments in surgery without adequate anaesthetic and without proper preparation for spinal injections.

Asylum Refused

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — A judge here has turned down the request for political asylum of Dr. Gerhard Bohne, 62, who is wanted for trial in West Germany for alleged killings under Hitler's Second World War euthanasia program.

COULD DO GREAT HARM CRITICS OF NATO TOLD

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Ball, U.S. undersecretary of state, Thursday night censured critics of the Atlantic alliance who contend that the structure of the defence organization must be revised.

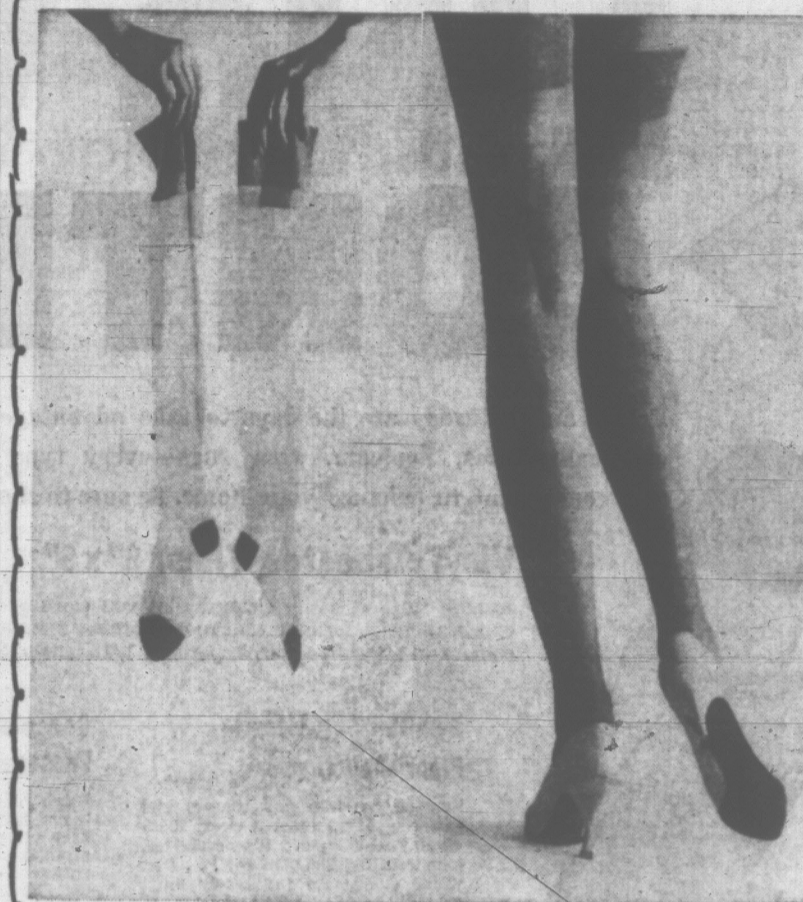

Such suggestions, Ball said, "could do great harm" and might reduce NATO to the status of an alliance "inactive in peace and impotent in war." Ball made the remarks in a talk to a meeting of political scientists and military experts of six NATO countries. Other officials of the administration meanwhile invited the allies to come forward with specific suggestions for improving the alliance and strengthening NATO.

The U.S. position has special application to France, which has been critical of the setup of the 15-year-old North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Washington favors greater integration, while French President de Gaulle opposes it.

Back-from-the-Grave Biplane Featured at Open House

Victoria Flying Club will stage an open house Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. at Patricia Bay Airport, featuring an aircraft display which includes a 1930 biplane.

The plane, which is older than its owner Mel Price, is a Fleet Two powered by a 160 h.p. Kinner engine.

It is believed to be the sixth Fleet-Two biplane built in Canada and it has been restored to better than original condition. And to show the latest in private plane comfort, a 1963 Cessna 205 will also be on display.

In all, 12 aircraft, ranging from a 60 h.p. Piper Cub J-3 to a Cessna 310 with twin 200 h.p. engines will be on view.

"We will have four planes operating in the afternoon to take people on familiarization flights. The flight will be a short circle of the airport so we can get as many people up as possible," said club director Mike Sealey.

Parachute packing demonstrations will be given by members of the club's skydiving team and corsages will be given to all mothers attending the open house.

Victoria Flying Club is one of 35 clubs across Canada staging open houses this weekend. The club has a membership of 150 and 25 members own planes. Seven planes are operated by the club.

Principle activity of the club is to teach people to fly private and commercial pilot licence standards.

Royal Theatre was packed and hundreds were turned away.

New Pride for a Mighty Land Felt by 1,400 at Times Show

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
The breadth and glory of Canada — from the sweep of the western Rockies to the quiet fishing villages of Nova Scotia — were depicted on the screen of the Royal Theatre Thursday night.

More than 1,400 persons applauded the presentation of Canadian Kodak's Photoscenic Canada — a remarkable assembly of colored movies and slides — sponsored by The Victoria Daily Times.

The theatre was packed and a few late-comers had to stand in the aisles.

It was a show that made everyone proud to belong in Canada. The cameras roved from Newfoundland to Victoria, from the mines of Ontario to the snow-capped peaks of the Rockies and beyond.

They recorded the whooping clatter of the Calgary Stampede, the classic precision of the Mounties' Musical Ride, the quiet, old-world handicrafts of Quebec — and the old Indian legend of the Thunderbird.

It was, in effect, an arm chair tour of Canada from Atlantic to Pacific which everyone enjoyed.

"We are reminded that Canada is the biggest country in the world after the Soviet Union and China," said Ted Footit of Canadian Kodak, who provided the commentary for Photoscenic Canada.

There was a spontaneous burst of applause when Victoria's famous Legislative Buildings, brilliantly illuminated, flashed across the screen.

But this was simply the western terminus of a tour that showed us the manifold wonders of Canada — great rivers rumbling and foaming through rocky canyons; great lakes smiling up out of dense forests, lonely in their beauty; the vast expanses of forestland stretching on and on to limitless horizons.

In between were the cultures of the cities. But these seemed incidental to the wonders of Canada outdoors. The glories of nature made the show and awakened a reverence in our hearts for this mighty land.

The legend of the Thunderbird was interpreted in a series of beautiful slides showing how Indians credited the Thunderbird with creation of the sun, the moon and the stars — and even the Canadian way of life.

There were shots of tulips in bloom on Ottawa's Parliament Hill; pretty girls climbing the steep hills of Quebec City; the busy bustling streets of Toronto; the nickel mines of Ontario; the gas and oil lands of Alberta and the vast fish and game preserves of British Columbia.

"It gave me a deep pride in my country," said one of the estimated 1,470 persons who saw Photoscenic Canada.

The show has travelled across Canada and was seen by more than 5,500 Vancouver persons at two performances in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Monday.

The show has travelled across Canada and was seen by more than 5,500 Vancouver persons at two performances in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Monday.

There was a spontaneous burst of applause when Victoria's famous Legislative Buildings, brilliantly illuminated, flashed across the screen.

But this was simply the western terminus of a tour that showed us the manifold wonders of Canada — great rivers rumbling and foaming through rocky canyons; great lakes smiling up out of dense forests, lonely in their beauty; the vast expanses of forestland stretching on and on to limitless horizons.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Industrials Up On Major Boards

Industrials were higher on balance in moderate afternoon trading today on the Toronto stock market.

There was active trading at Montreal, where prices were generally higher.

A six-day advance in New York faltered in fairly active trading, and prices moved irregularly lower.

AT TORONTO senior base metals had Noranda—rumored to be interested in developing the potash property of Tomblin Mines—up 4 1/2 to 47 1/2 and International Nickel up 1/2 to 85 1/2.

In speculative issues, Area Mines jumped 20 cents to $1.88 while Consolidated Morrison, which had a 14-cent gain at 85 cents, Tomblin was active but unchanged at $1.55.

La Luz dipped 30 cents to $6.75 and Preston lost 15 cents to a 1964 low of $7 in a quiet session.

Western oils encountered small selling in major issues. AT NEW YORK Du Pont fell 2 points. Eastern Air Lines lost 2 1/2 at 32 1/2 on 40,000 shares. National Airlines was off 2. Both compete with Northeast Airlines which rallied more than a point on the American exchange on news of a government ruling which enables it to continue flying its New York-Fort Lauderdale route.

AT LONDON stock markets moved uncertainly today in the face of conflicting political influences. Gilgit securities opened easier but made a partial recovery. Insurances made some headway but properties were undecided. Industrials were unsettled with most leaders losing ground. Associated Cement, AEI and Crown Cork were isolated firm spots.

AT VANCOUVER trading was moderate. Futurity was down at .32 and Peco Silver at $1.80. Endeavour climbed to $7.65 and Grandeur to $6.15. Dom. Tar & Chem. was up at $20 1/2 and Neon at $26 1/2.

'Too Easy to Sell Canadian Goods'

VANCOUVER (CP)—It's almost too easy to sell Canadian goods in Britain, says B. C. Butler, Canada's commercial minister for the federal trade office at London.

"We're doing almost embarrassingly well."

"We can almost guarantee at least a trial order for any reasonably priced, competitive Canadian product aimed at the modern consumer."

The embarrassing fact, Mr. Butler said in an interview, is that Britain's sales to Canada are languishing. Trade between the countries is in bad balance and getting worse.

"It's not a healthy state for two friendly trading partners," he said. "But the cure lies in their hands, not ours."

"They should study the Canadian market more closely and offer products Canadians want. There's still a market for traditional U.K. goods but other products must come up to North American standards in design and service."

"British manufacturers have focused on Europe in recent years and have perhaps tended to neglect Canada. Also they are inclined to take the view that North American consumers are spoiled. But we like being spoiled here. In North America the consumer is king."

TRADE TRIP TO JAPAN TWO-WAY OPERATION

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Trade Minister Ralph Lofmark told a B.C. trade promotion conference Thursday that a trade mission to Japan with an accent on making a two-way process is planned.

He said the experimental mission will balance buyers and sellers and will encourage them to operate "as close to equilibrium as they can."

"The mission would combine buying with selling because it's no help developing a market for people outside the province, only to find they use their foreign exchange to buy from other provinces," he said.

"We must catch the foreign exchange we make available to other nations. We must get them to spend it back in Canada," he said.

Another Mill Announced For North

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Yet another plan for a multi-million dollar pulp mill in northern British Columbia was announced Thursday.

Greater Peace Forest Products Ltd., of Fort St. John, B.C., announced plans for a $50,000,000 mill which would have a capacity of 500 tons a day and employ 300 men.

The mill would be in the Dawson Creek—Fort St. John area, near the Alberta border 150-200 miles northeast of here.

Walter Wilk, a director of the company has a guaranteed overseas market. Financial backing had been obtained overseas.

MacMillan, Bdoedel and Powell River Company—$84,000,000 pulp mill at Kitimat, 50 miles south of Prince Rupert.

Columbia Cellulose—$70,000,000 expansion of its mills at Prince Rupert.

Bulkley Valley Pulp and Timber Ltd., $70,000,000 mill at Houston between here and Prince Rupert.

Alexander Forest Products—$60,000,000 sawmill and pulp mill in the Peace River drainage system.

Northwood Mills Ltd., wholly-owned subsidiary of Noranda Mines Ltd.,—$50,000,000 pulp mill here.

Canadian Forest Products and Reed Paper Group of England—now building a pulp mill here.

Because some of the companies seek the same timber all the plans will not come to fruition.

LOCAL BUSINESSMEN

The Greater Peace company is made up of businessmen from the area, Mr. Wilk said. They organized a limited company specifically to build a pulp mill.

Mr. Wilk said the company seeks a hearing for a pulp harvesting licence after Dec. 31.

The company was applying for a pulp harvesting licence and tree farm licence on 10,000 acres bounded by the Alberta border, the watershed between the Beaton and Sklanni Rivers and the western half of land in the North and South Peace River electoral districts.

Mr. Wilk said detailed plans of the location and type of mill are not available because engineering and forestry studies are not complete. The $50,000,000 price was an estimate. The mill would take about two years to build, he said, adding that he did not wish to reveal the name of the financier backing the venture. The market guaranteed consumption of 500 tons a day. Of the 14,000 acres under application, only about 9,000 acres were capable of pulpwood production, he said.

Railroaders Want Union Merger

CLEVELAND (AP) — Signed postal cards from 45,195 locomotive engineers and firemen in the United States and Canada approve merging the two railway brotherhoods that represent them, one of the unions reported Thursday.

Returns now show a majority of those surveyed favor merger, H. E. Gilbert, president of the BLFE, said. The tallied response included 17,225 of 30,000 working engineers, 23,775 of 38,500 helpers or firemen; and 4,200 of 8,000 Canadian engineers and firemen, Gilbert said.

The other union, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, has been cool to merger talk. Its officers have said nothing could be done before the union's next convention in 1966. Also, the BLE recently launched a membership drive to recruit from the BLFE ranks.

The BLFE has about 75,000 members and the BLE about 65,000, and there is an overlap of about 10,000. Also, each membership includes many thousands of furloughed and pensioned members.

Gilbert said BLFE have asked for a meeting with BLE officers to discuss a merger proposal, the details of which will not be released in advance. The plan would continue separation of the crafts and continued present insurance coverage for individual members, he said.

A. W. A. LANE
... likes U.S. market

'Don't Let Tariff Laws Scare You'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadian businessmen should strive to get a bigger share of sales in the lucrative United States market, A. W. A. Lane of the federal trade relations office in Ottawa said Thursday.

Canada supplies a remarkably small share of the goods purchased by Americans but could expand that share, he told a trade promotion conference here.

Canada has inside tracks to the U.S. market, including geographic proximity, the similarity of Canadian and American production and distribution systems and the fact that "we think the same, talk the same and do business the same way."

Mr. Lane said "baffling and discouraging" U.S. tariff regulations—in which "it seems there are so many U.S. agencies lying in wait to threaten the Canadian exporter"—should not frighten away Canadians from the American market.

Often the bark is worse than the bite, he said. About half Canada's exports to the U.S. enter that country duty free.

G. F. J. Osbaldeston, Canadian consul and trade commissioner in Los Angeles, said that although "it's tough as heck" to sell in the U.S., Canadians are doing a good job.

Glidden Buys Burnaby Firm

TORONTO (CP)—Glidden Co. Ltd. of Toronto has bought Walker Brothers Ltd. of South Burnaby, B.C., for an undisclosed price, J. W. Fowler, Glidden vice-president and managing director, said today.

The company, which manufactures wood coatings, will operate as a division of Glidden. C. S. Walker will remain as manager of the new unit, Mr. Fowler said.

A major product of the B.C. firm is a stain-coating for plywood which permits wet stacking of wood immediately after coating and eliminates separation for drying.

Speaking at the annual convention of Mine-Mill's west division here Mr. Smith said: "We are certainly prepared to talk co-operation. But what Canadian worker could have respect for us if we merged or affiliated with the Steelworkers?"

Steel could not fight to keep jobs and secondary industry in Canada because this might conflict with United States interests and Steel was based in Pittsburgh.

He said Larry Sefton, national director of the Steelworkers, made the merger proposal to get publicity as an advocate of mine labor unity. Sefton had sent two letters—in February and March—proposing merger talks.

"As far as I'm concerned there was no sincerity and no genuine concern for the workers in this industry expressed in those letters," Mr. Smith said.

He said at the time he had replied to Sefton that Mine-Mill would discuss co-operation between the two unions if Steel would call off raids on Mine-Mill locals. But nothing came of the proposal.

U.S. Steelmen Eye Alberta Coal Field

TORONTO (CP)—Some of the world's largest steelmakers are interested in the product of the 500,000,000-ton deposit of high-grade metallurgical coal in northwestern Alberta owned by McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd., President J. D. Barrington said Thursday.

Mr. Barrington told the company's annual meeting here that arrangements have been made for actual testing of the coal in steel plants this summer. The location of the coal was not given.

Mr. Barrington said talks are under way with Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd. with a view to exploring favorable areas below the bottom of the Hollinger mine adjacent to McIntyre Porcupine mines.

In reference to the copper-zinc-silver deposit on the property of Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. north of Timmins, Mr. Barrington said McIntyre holds 160 acres in the same township.

Miners Claim Steel Merger Bid Sham

VANCOUVER (CP)—The president of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (I.U.M.S.W.) said Wednesday a merger proposal from a rival union was insincere.

Ken Smith of Toronto flatly rejected any merger with the United Steelworkers of America (U.S.A.).

Speaking at the annual convention of Mine-Mill's west division here Mr. Smith said:

"We are certainly prepared to talk co-operation. But what Canadian worker could have respect for us if we merged or affiliated with the Steelworkers?"

Steel could not fight to keep jobs and secondary industry in Canada because this might conflict with United States interests and Steel was based in Pittsburgh.

He said Larry Sefton, national director of the Steelworkers, made the merger proposal to get publicity as an advocate of mine labor unity. Sefton had sent two letters—in February and March—proposing merger talks.

He said at the time he had replied to Sefton that Mine-Mill would discuss co-operation between the two unions if Steel would call off raids on Mine-Mill locals. But nothing came of the proposal.

Compressor Bids

NORTH COWICHAN—Council received bids Wednesday for a new compressor and municipal garage. Bids ranged from $3,000 to $5,000 for the compressor, and $20,600 to $21,400 for the garage. Tenders were referred to the finance committee for recommendation.

Small Business Attacks Report

TORONTO (CP)—A number of small businessmen have lashed out at some of the recommendations of the Porter royal commission on banking and finance.

Chief concern of the businessmen is that the ceiling on interest rates for chartered banks might be withdrawn.

"There is no indication that the banks will stay in line," A. M. Perly, president of a local merchants association said.

"After all," he added, "they are charging up to 11½ per cent on loans already."

"If you make all financial institutions into financial department stores, you can bet that with the Canadian public's awesome reverence for banks, they will get 90 per cent of the business."

Also critical of some recommendations was Clifford Ghent, president of another businessmen's association: "I think it's going to make money more expensive to obtain ... there's no question about that."

Mr. Ghent said the report

CO-OPERATION PLEDGED

Varsities Avert Fund Drive Fight

VANCOUVER (CP)—The presidents of British Columbia's three public universities agreed Thursday night to co-operate in their public appeals for development funds.

Agreement was reached at a dinner attended by Education Minister Peterson and President John Macdonald of the University of B.C., Ian McTaggart-Cowan of Simon Fraser and Dr. Malcolm Taylor of the University of Victoria.

"We want to encourage healthy rivalry in many fields; we don't want and will not encourage unhealthy competition to try and gain financial support at the expense of each other," said Dr. Macdonald, acting as spokesman.

Dr. Macdonald said each university recognizes that "none can be strong unless they all are."

All three universities have announced money drives this fall.

UBC is expected to seek $30,000,000 for expansion over the next few years. Simon Fraser wants $18,000,000 to build a new university from scratch atop Burnaby Mountain.

Uvic will campaign for $5,000,000 to finance the second phase of university development at Gordon Head campus.

Earlier, Vancouver Board of Trade president Ed Benson said the universities should act jointly on money-raising.

He said three, separate, overlapping campaigns is "ludicrous."

$3-a-Day Jobs Lure Hundreds

The pay is only $3 a day but the response is overwhelming to the B.C. government's 150 vacancies in the recreation department.

More than 700 applications have been made for the summertime jobs.

The reason: you have to be a high school student under the age of 18.

The recreation department's summer crews offer an ideal holiday with pay for B.C. youngsters.

They clear trails and clean up parks during July and August.

They get $3 a day, room and board and entertainment, too.

The boys are under adult supervision.

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said the program, which costs $90,000, breeds future civil servants.

Many boys who get interested in forestry and conservation later join government departments as full-time employees, he said.

Mr. Kiernan said he will visit crews in the field this summer.

This year's program will cover six parks.

Boys will work in Garibaldi, Alice Lake, Manning, Moyle Lake, Champion Lakes and Ten Mile parks.

The boys will get such side trips as a visit to the Kelowna Regatta, tours of the Cominco mines at Trail and Kimberley. They will be shown educational films from the provincial travel bureau and fish and game branch.

Young Victoria Horsewomen Score In Calgary

Two young Victoria horsewomen placed highly Wednesday in Calgary's spring horse show.

Jean Dunbar, riding Maori Legend, won the model hunter event, and Brenda Barrie, a recent arrival to Metehosin, came third in the lightweight hunter class with Fargo's Flash.

Miss Barrie, formerly of Edmonton, took one other mount to the show, and Miss Dunbar took a newly-acquired palomino jumper and another hunter, Maori Chieftain, which like Maori Legend was imported from New Zealand.

There were only four out-of-province firsts in 11 events.

But Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Woodward, of Vancouver, came second in the hunter class with Funny Bunny.

Most winners were from Alberta stables, although there were entries from Saskatchewan, Colorado and Washington that placed well.

Nicoll Seeks New Hearing

NANAIMO—A court of revision, which refused to hear a Gabriola Island man's land tax assessment appeal, will be asked to reconvene to hear the case.

R. E. Nicoll, long a foe of the assessment system, said here he will ask chairman Jack Barsby to set a date for hearing assessment appeals on his 73-acre Breakwater Island off the southwest tip of Gabriola.

Mr. Nicoll's action follows a B.C. Supreme Court judgment quashing a court of revision decision dismissing the assessment appeal.

It dismissed the appeal on the grounds that Nicoll was in contempt of court following a January radio broadcast from Vancouver.

The appellant denied he was responsible for the broadcast and appealed to the Supreme Court.

He claimed the court of revision was without jurisdiction to hold him in contempt, punish him or decline to hear his appeal.

NANAIMO—A more extensive sheep raising and breeding program on Vancouver Island was urged by district agriculturist J. V. Zacharias at a meeting of livestock farmers here.

"More sheep should be raised on the Island," he said. "We don't produce enough lamb in Canada or in this province. We still have to import large amounts.

He noted that there are about 15,000 sheep on the Island. But, he added, they are raised by farmers mainly as a sideline and sold exclusively for meat with wool as a by-product.

DUNCAN—An appeal for more blood donors was made today by chairman of the Duncan Red Cross Blood Clinic, George F. N. Cobbold, following a "disappointing" turnout Thursday.

The clinic is open again today at the Duncan United Church hall from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The society is hoping for a quota of 600 pints of blood.

COURTENAY—Three youths, charged with burglary, are scheduled to appear in police court Saturday for election of trial.

Terry Joasul, Dennis Wynne and Michael Madden of Courtenay are charged with breaking into Pacific Brewers Warehousing Ltd.

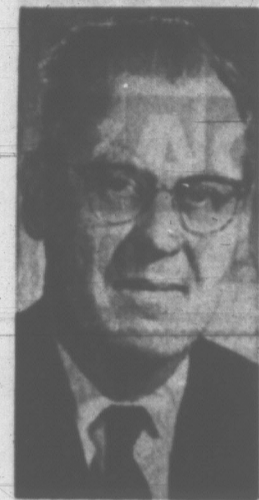

They appeared in court earlier this week but were remanded.

Police arrested the trio after Pacific Brewers was broken into and a safe stolen. There was about $200 in the safe. It was recovered in Brown's River.

Also broken into the same night was Island Ready-Mix, near Cumberland, Matt Brown's Esso plant and H. Squire and Sons Shell bulk plant, both of Royston.

Canteen To Work For Fund

A 20-foot mobile canteen, built by members of South Van Island Lions Club to help raise funds for various campaigns, will be put to work on Sunday.

It will be christened when the club has its annual Mother's Day Pancake Bake from 8:30 a.m. through the day at Mattick's Farm, 5325 Cordova Bay, B.C.

The Lions offer all you can eat at 75 cents-a-head for adults and 35 cents for children. Proceeds will go to the Port Alberni Flood Disaster Fund.

The mobile canteen, which the club hopes to use on many other efforts, is a travelling restaurant with coffee urns, grills, ovens and sink units.

Auxiliaries Complete Police Course

NANAIMO—Thirteen volunteers who completed a 3½-month training program at the RCMP detachment here were sworn in Thursday as auxiliary policemen.

They are the first group to take the first RCMP auxiliary police training class at the Nanaimo, detachment. It is expected another training program will be started in the fall.

The course includes police instructions on criminal law, crowd control, first aid, handling of small arms, traffic control, general police work, foot drill, RCMP discipline and emergency planning.

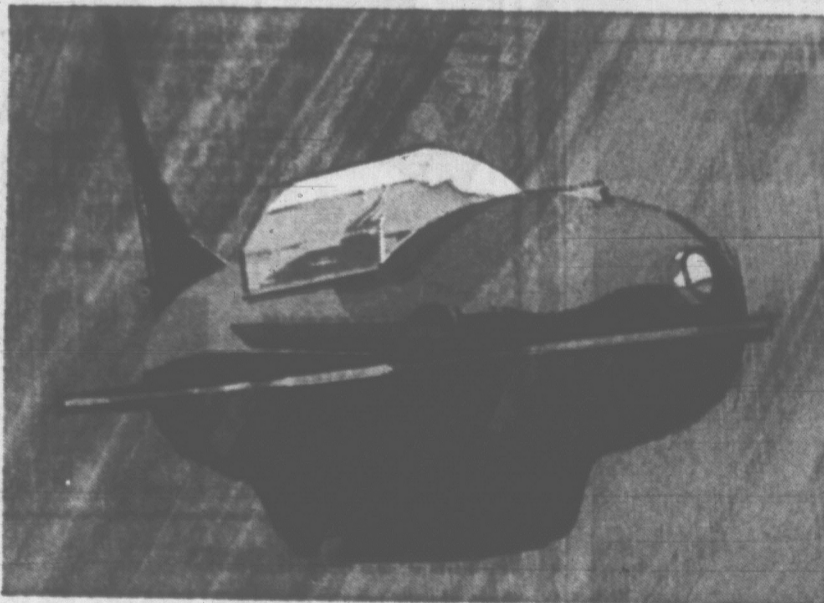

The program of training auxiliary police began in the province in 1962 as a means of assisting RCMP officers in emergencies.

Exhibition Park, Vancouver

Sponsored by the Government of British Columbia

A strange new species of fish may appear in Vancouver Island waters if the central exhibit of the B.C. International Trade Fair catches on with sportsmen.

This fish, however, is plastic, powered by electric motors, and operated by a man able to remain fully clothed.

It is a one-man submarine built in Germany.

The baby U-boat differs from other one-man subs in that it is fully pressurized, so there is no need for the pilot to wear SCUBA diving equipment.

It has been tested to withstand pressures corresponding to a depth of 246 feet, but safety equipment limits its diving depth to 100 feet. It is fully instrumented with pressure and depth gauges and a compass.

The sub is almost 10 feet long, with a beam of 27 inches, and it is powered by 12-volt batteries driving a prop.

As well as being designed for the sportsman who wants something different, the sub can be used for all types of underwater inspection work, including ship-bottom and harbor inspections.

It will be on show at the Trade Fair at Vancouver's Exhibition Park from May 13 to 23.

Reservoir Capacity Doubled

NANAIMO (CP) — A $200,000 project to double capacity of the Gerater Nanaimo Water District reservoir was completed Tuesday night.

The reservoir will be flushed and filling will start in two weeks.

The district started last November on the project, which saw the concrete lining of what was originally a 5½ acre earth enclosure.

The flushing is being rushed in order to get the reservoir in use before hot weather increases consumption, officials said.

'Must Honor' Park Claims Says Kiernan

PORT ALBERNI (CP) —The provincial government will not permit wanton cutting of timber in B.C. parks, says Recreation Minister Kiernan.

Asked by the local Chamber of Commerce for a statement of his policy on commercial and industrial operations in parks, Mr. Kiernan replied in a letter: "Ninety per cent of the public use of park land is confined to 10 per cent of the areas which are readily accessible. "Crown grant mineral claims and valid timber berths exist in larger parks and, though these were granted by previous governments, they must be honored.

ONLY BY PLANE

"Millions of acres are accessible by plane only and this fact gives special privileges to those who can afford to own or charter planes."

The minister said that prohibition of any commercial operations in parks would raise the question of whether operation of ski lifts or provision of food for sale should be prohibited.

Tear Gas Quells Iowa Prison Riot

ANAMOSA, Iowa (AP) — A the prisoners, but the third noisy uprising by about 200 prisoners at the Iowa Men's Reformatory was quelled late Thursday after officers used tear gas to flush 16 die-hards from the prison cannery.

The state director of correction, Ben Baer, who is acting warden at the reformatory, said the demonstration started when a member of the custodial staff found three men in the laundry without permission.

Baer said the staff member succeeded in locking up two of Reformatory authorities rang a bell—the signal for the inmates to go in and wash up—but about 200 refused to leave the yard.

30 STAYED OUT

As highway patrolmen and sheriff's officers converged on the yard, Baer said all but about 20 men went to their cells under threat of tear gas.

A group of 12 to 15 prisoners went into the laundry, where they set a fire and committed acts of vandalism, Baer said. A new $5,000 washing machine was wrecked.

Guards stationed on the walls fired eight to 10 shots into the ground, or over the heads of the demonstrators.

A force of about 40 law officers, carrying unloaded riot clubs and tear gas grenades, finally moved into the prison yard. As they went in, the defiant die-hards retreated into the cannery building.

Baer said many of the group apparently were "high" from "sniffing soap." He explained soap used in the laundry contains a chemical which gives off fumes that give prisoners a "kick."

NOMURA (seated) and KURUSU

IGNORANT OF ATTACK

Pearl Harbor Envoy Admiral Nomura Dies

TOKYO (AP)—Admiral Kishisaburo Nomura, 86, Japan's ambassador to the United States when his country attacked Pearl Harbor, died today after a long illness.

Nomura and special envoy Saburo Kuru received one of the stiffest tongue-lashings in diplomatic annals when they arrived at the U.S. state department Dec. 7, 1941, bringing Japan's rejection of the latest U.S. peace formula. Bombs had just begun falling on the U.S. Pacific outpost.

Seething with anger, State Secretary Cordell Hull kept Nomura and Kuru waiting 15 minutes in an anteroom.

They entered Hull's office smiling and bowing and handed him the Japanese note. He read it slowly, without betraying his fury, even at the sentence, "the immutable policy of Japan is to promote world peace."

HULL EXPLODED

Then Hull exploded, telling the two shocked envoys:

"In all my 50 years of public service, I have never seen a document that was more crowded with infamous falsehoods and distortions on a scale so huge that I never imagined until today that any government on this planet was capable of uttering them."

Numura, who had been assigned to Washington nine months earlier to handle the last-ditch peace negotiations, repeatedly denied any advance knowledge of the attack which brought the United States into the Second World War.

"I must have been the worst-informed ambassador in history," he said on a visit to the United States in 1953. "I told the American authorities then that I might be called back at any time, but that there would only be talk and more talk. I said I was certain there would be no attack."

ACCEPTED DENIAL

U.S. officials generally accepted Nomura's denial and did not press for his prosecution as a war criminal.

In his memoirs, Nomura described himself as a "messenger" who couldn't change the policies of the Japanese militarists. He said he warned his government war with the United States would be risky.

In the postwar years, he was a business executive. He was elected to the Japanese Senate in 1959.

YUKONER, HAYS TANGLE

Patronage Cry Spikes Farm Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Thursday took a rural ramble through all the major agricultural problems of Canada during a debate spiked with a stiff charge of patronage.

The spicy subject of patronage held the floor for an hour as Erik Nielsen (PC-Yukon) took up where he left off April 24 when he charged that a "representative" of Agriculture Minister Hays tried to get an Edmonton dairy manager to shorten his six-month contract to supply military installations in that area.

He said that the representative—a Mr. McKay—tried to persuade Jacob Trach of Purity Dairy Company to cut the contract he had to supply dairy products to RCAF station Namao and Griesbach army depot.

"My information is that Mr. McKay then said to Mr. Trach that 'we can in accordance with instructions from Ottawa, find something wrong with your product.' . . . in other words, somebody was going to stick a manure fork into the cream can."

When he resumed his speech Thursday—that included additional allegations he said should be investigated—Mr. Hays was ready with a prepared statement that constituted a sweeping denial.

The representative in question not only did not work for the agriculture department, the minister said he had never seen him or Mr. Trach and neither he nor any of his officials were in any way involved.

Industry Minister Drury, whose department includes the department of defence production, rose to say that Mr. McKay was an employee of the defence production department and the minister had the "utmost confidence" in him. Mr. McKay had denied making any kind of threat in connection with the contract and he had not received any instructions from Mr. Hays.

Mr. Nielsen said Mr. Trach was prepared to swear under oath to the information given by him to the House. Mr. Drury said he was prepared to get an affidavit from Mr. McKay. Mr. Hays said he would be prepared to have a judicial inquiry.

The Yukon member also said there were "goings on" among members of the Liberal party in connection with the appointment of solicitors to the Farm Credit Corporation.

SPORTS DIARY

By SHIRLEY POVICH
(The Washington Post)

WASHINGTON—One year hence, the major league baseball map will be redrawn to include Atlanta or the mayor of that city will have lost a steep gamble with taxpayers' funds. A $16 million stadium is rising in Atlanta, and so is the hope that the Deep South, at long last, will graduate to big league baseball.

Atlanta isn't building simply on faith. There have been promises, secret ones but by the right people, that either the Milwaukee Braves or the Cleveland Indians will call Atlanta their new home before a new baseball season opens, if Atlanta has a new stadium ready. The challenge has been accepted eagerly.

So eager is Ivan Allen, Jr., the Atlanta mayor, that he asked and won the authority to pay the stadium contractors an $800,000 premium if they hurry the job into completion by April, 1965. Obviously he is proceeding on something more than a child-like hope that some team may have designs on a move to Atlanta.

The mayor knows exactly which team it will be, and he has a written memorandum from the owners that they are disposed to make the shift. He can't reveal which club it is because commissioner Fick would frown on such an embarrassment to both the team and the city in which it now plays, but the existence of the memorandum is not secret.

Look for Football's Cards to Move

Also, Atlanta is not building for big league baseball alone. By the fall of 1965, it fully expects to have a team in the National Football League. This would be the St. Louis Cardinals, whose owners have been listening hard to the blandishments of Atlanta folk and their boom-town talk.

Milwaukee's Braves are the probable transferees to Atlanta because Milwaukee is barely on probation this year as a big league city. The new owners who bought the team from Lou Perini, who got out after a steep drop in attendance, were disenchanted with Milwaukee last season when the city which once sent 2,215,404 fans to the ball park (in the 1957 season) turned out only 733,648 customers last year.

The one factor that could derail a move of the Braves to Atlanta would be an unexpected pennant victory by the Braves this year. Atlanta has that to root against, and also in the case of the Cleveland Indians. But despite Milwaukee's strong early showing and the Indians' tentative lead in the American League, no pennant appears in sight for either club.

Eccentric Finley Got Cold Shoulder

The Braves' owners were known to have itchy feet last winter when they issued an ultimatum that the town must support the club in stronger fashion or a move would be made. And that the Indians are not wedded to Cleveland is also known. There is no local ownership to bind either the Braves or the Indians to their cities.

Charles O. Finley, owner of Kansas City, also had eyes for Atlanta last winter even while he was negotiating with Louisville, but the Atlanta people gave him short shift. Eager as they are to acquire a big league franchise, they might have abided the eccentric Finley, but not when there was solid hope of joining the majors without him.

The Indians have been casting about for a new home for years and coveted Minneapolis before Calvin Griffith made the trek there. The Indians, who set an American League attendance record of 2,620,670 in 1945, dropped dismally to a mere 562,527 two seasons ago and the slight upturn to 716,078 last season was less than thrilling.

St. Louis Strictly Baseball Town

In Cleveland, there is a special situation that augurs for a move by its baseball team. Sports interest in that city is blanketed by the successful Cleveland Browns of the NFL. Cleveland has become a frenzy of pro football and the Browns, in a mere eight home games last season, drew more fans than did the baseball team in 81 home games.

The reverse is true in St. Louis, which is a baseball town, enamored of its traditional Cardinals lof baseball fame. The football Cardinals have not been successful there since their move from Chicago as the weak-sisters of that two-team town, unable to compete with the Bears.

A new football stadium is a-building in St. Louis but it is two years away and, anyway, park capacity has never been much of a consideration to the Cardinals. Last season they were tied for second place in the Eastern Division of the NFL with a 5-2 record, they came up to their biggest home game of the year, against the New York Giants, and fell more than 2,000 below the 31,000 capacity of the park. Understandably, they have eyes for Atlanta.

Parnelli Turns 156 In Speedway 'Relic'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Parnelli Jones hit 156 miles an hour Thursday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, where 150 was considered all but impossible until Jones did it two years ago.

His old front-engine Offenhauser roadster was called obsolete by a lot of automotive engineers last year after spectacular invasions by European road racers Jimmy Clark and Dan Gurney in new rear-engine Lotus-Fords.

Jones did win last year's $500,000 Indianapolis 500 and would have won it the previous year if a hydraulic brake line hadn't worn through.

The Torrance, Calif., veteran turned four laps Thursday, clocked by electric timer, at 155.871, 156.002, 155.333 and 156.233. The official one-lap record around the 2½-mile track is 151.847 miles an hour, set by Jones last year in substantially the same car.

A. J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., defending United States Auto Club national champion, followed Jones' practice run Thursday in another roadster and got up to 153.6.

New rear-engine Offenhausers are available to both Jones and Foyt. And they'll try them before deciding definitely to stay with the "relics."

Player Grabs Lead

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Gregarious Gary Player carved a two-under-par 68 Thursday and seized the first-round lead in the $75,000 Colonial national invitational golf tournament.

The little South African made a seven-foot par putt on the final green to move a shot ahead of Tommy Jacobs.

Player, who attributed his fine round to "the best driving I've done in a long, long time," shot a par 35 on the front line, then

Punchless Champs Have Pitching Woes As Well

By Associated Press

Are officials of Los Angeles Dodgers beginning to be concerned with the sputtering start made by the defending world champions?

That seemed to be the big question today following two developments—still another loss by the weak-hitting Dodgers, 2-1 to Houston Colts in National League action Thursday night and a trade report involving pitcher Johnny Podres.

Denied by the Dodgers, the report said Colt officials had been offered Podres, who in his only appearance on April 25 was struck in the elbow by a Warren Spahn pitch and has been on the mound for only two innings this season.

"I know nothing whatsoever about it," said Dodger general manager, Buzzie Bavasi. "I haven't talked to anyone on the

Dalrymple's Punch Kayoes Braves

While the Dodgers were battling their own problems, Tom Haller's two-run single in the eighth gave San Francisco a 7-6 edge over Chicago Cubs, Clay Dalrymple's two-run homer started Philadelphia Phillies on the way to a 9-6 victory over Milwaukee Braves, St. Louis Cardinals defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 and New York Mets nipped Cincinnati Reds 3-2.

The Colts scored in the fifth on a single by Walt Bond, a double by Jim Wynn and Bob Aspromonte's sacrifice fly. Winning pitcher Bob Bruce led off the sixth with a single and came around with the clincher on a sacrifice and Al Spangler's single.

The Dodgers scored their lone run in the seventh on singles by Dick Tracewski and West Parker and a sacrifice fly by Willson who also collected three singles and a double.

Dalrymple, hitless in 22 previous trips to the place, hammered his homer off Hank Fischer following a single by John Herrnstein, snapping a 2-2 tie.

Over in the American League, the first-place Indians overcame the Orioles, 9-4, the Yankees defeated the Senators, 9-6, the Twins beat the Angels, 9-1, and the Red Sox downed the Tigers 7-3.

HE CAN HIT

Oliva Looks Like A Lefty Aaron

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Baseball men are starting to call Tony Oliva a left-handed Henry Aaron and, based on the Cuban rookie's auspicious debut in the American League, the assessment may be accurate.

Oliva made a believer out of Los Angeles manager Bill Rigney by flailing Angel pitching for six hits in nine times at bat in a two-game series.

"He's a heck of a hitter, isn't he," Rigney said after Oliva collected four hits, including a grand slam home run and a solo homer, and drove in six runs in Minnesota Twins' 9-1 victory over the Angels Thursday.

"I haven't noticed too much he can't hit. It looks like we'll have to throw him spitballs and hope we drown him."

Oliva, 6-foot-1 and 175 pounds, hits with remarkable power, like Aaron, Milwaukee Braves great outfielder.

He's a spray hitter who hits the ball where it's pitched. His grand slam off left-hander Jack Spring was pulled to right field. His solo clout, off right-hander Paul Foytack, was poked over the left-field fence.

He also notched two singles to raise his average to .427. He has seven homers and 18 runs batted in.

Tony is an uncomplicated 22-year-old to whom the game of baseball is a simple thing. He just hits the ball. He doesn't care who the pitcher is; he seldom even knows the name of the pitcher he is batting against.

BIONDA SINKS NANAIMO

Unwin Plans Try To Rescue Rocks

Dave Unwin and Jack Bionda are today's minute-men on the Inter-City Lacrosse League scene.

Unwin is riding in an attempt to rescue Victoria Shamrocks, and Bionda did a rescue job for New Westminster Thursday night. Big Jack pumped in four goals to propel Westminster to a 14-10 victory over stubborn Nanaimo and sole possession of first place.

Unwin, 29, who played in the IJLL previously with Vancouver as well as marking up brief trials with the Rocks, Thursday agreed to step forward and try to solve Victoria's goaltending problems.

Victoria used junior Bobby Fisher in goal when regular Barry Forbes failed to show up for Wednesday's game with Vancouver at Memorial Arena.

LONG, LAYOFF

"I haven't had a stick in my hand since 1961," said Unwin, "but I'll give it a try."

In view of the long layoff, it is unlikely Unwin will play Saturday night when Rocks visit Nanaimo. Fisher will probably fill in. Unwin, however, will probably get his first chance next week.

ALLAN CUP GOES . . .

Maroons End Famine

WINNIPEG (CP) — A 33-year famine ended Thursday when Winnipeg Maroons beat Woodstock Athletics 5-3 and brought the city its first Allan Cup since 1931.

The victory against the eastern champions gave Maroons a four-game sweep in the best-of-seven final for the nation's senior hockey crown.

It also ended a 12-year search by Maroons, Manitoba's only senior hockey team. They were formed in 1932, and despite two

WHL May Join AHL—If LA Makes the NHL

SEATTLE (AP)—The Western Hockey League apparently killed one rumor and added fuel to another when it opened its annual spring meeting Thursday.

Reports that Los Angeles Blades would leave the league apparently were quashed with an official announcement that "the WHL will operate in the same six cities for 1964-65."

However, persistent rumors that the WHL will merge with the American Hockey League gained credence when the league decided to send a representative to the coming AHL meeting to discuss the matter.

The announcement concerning next year's operation contained a solemn word about Denver Invaders, troubled most of last season by poor attendance and losses reported up to $70,000.

"Denver requested a six-week extension in order to conduct a season-ticket campaign. If the club sells 2,000 season tickets, Denver will operate in the Western Hockey League. If the campaign falls short of that figure, other arrangements will be made," the statement said.

Portland, one of the best supported teams in the league, only sold about 2,400 season tickets last year.

The league announcement came after an all-day, closed-door emergency session of club directors called by Al Leader, president of the WHL, to discuss the rumored Los Angeles withdrawal.

Members of the Los Angeles group here said they did not know the source of the rumor, but at one point, Jim Piggett, co-owner of the Blades, said, "I hope it's true."

A story in the Redondo Daily Breeze, a Los Angeles area newspaper, said the Blades had asked for a year's leave of absence, leaving them eligible to move up to the National Hockey League.

Then, the paper said, the WHL and AHL could merge. Cleveland, western-most AHL club, would join the western members—Denver, Portland, Seattle, San Francisco and Vancouver. Springfield and Providence would be dropped from the AHL leaving two six-team divisions.

The WHL has long wanted to become a western division of the NHL, but the only thing to come out of the emergency session in this regard was a statement that:

"Provisions were adopted whereby any city or all six members may apply for entry into the National Hockey League."

DECLINES TO COMMENT

In Montreal, Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, declined to comment on the statement. He did say the Blades had made application for membership in the NHL, but that it had never been considered "because Los Angeles is already a member of a league with which we have friendly relations."

Campbell said he was not surprised Los Angeles decided to remain in the WHL.

The league's terse announcement about next year's operation apparently means Edmonton and Calgary will not rejoin

KEN REARDON

AFTER 24 YEARS

Reardon Resigns Canadiens' Post

MONTREAL (CP)—Ken Reardon ended a 24-year connection with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League today, resigning as vice-president for "business and personal reasons."

"It was a difficult decision to make," said Reardon, reached at home here.

The former great defenseman, five times an all-star, declined to discuss his future plans or elaborate on reasons for his resignation, other than to say he wants to be able to spend more time "with my children in their formative years."

Since retiring as a player in 1950, Reardon has had to travel a good deal as a member of the Canadiens administration.

He was an official goodwill ambassador before becoming vice-president and assistant general manager of the club and the Canadian Arena Company in 1959.

He has four children, a girl and three boys, ranging in age from 12 to six months.

BULWARK ON DEFENCE

A good push-carrier and one of the rushing defencemen, Reardon was a bulwark of the great Canadiens teams coached by the late Dick Irvin in the 1940s.

He missed some of their most successful years because of three years' army service overseas during the Second World War but he was on one Stanley Cup and one NHL title winner, in 1946.

Frequently he was paired with Emile Butch Bouchard to form a hard-checking defence that did rather more body-belt-

Fish Are Hiding

Fresh and salt-water fishing around Lower Island areas has been a hit-or-miss proposition the past several days, and it is expected to remain that way for a few more.

While some good-sized fish have been taken in various areas—an 18-pound spring at Otter Point, 16-pounders at Beecher Bay and Oak Bay, and a 14-pounder at Hall's—there have been no steady concentrations of fish.

There are some Columbia River salmon moving down the Strait of Juan de Fuca and they are reported being caught by commercial fishermen, but not many sports fishermen have gone out.

A few bluebacks are being taken off Discovery Island.

GANG-TROLL FAVORED

Some blues also are being found in the centre of Saanich Inlet and around Mill Bay, but the only thing they are biting is a gang-troll and worm, with a long line and one or two ounces of weight.

Saanich Inlet is not expected to become consistent for at least two more weeks.

The centre of attraction for fresh-water fishing this weekend is Lake Cowichan, when the St. Louis Men's Society holds its fifth annual trout derby Saturday from 5 a.m. to 5 p.m.

GOING FOR FLIES

Marble Bay has been fairly good on the fly, and trolling along the top of the lake has produced some good fish.

The call is for spoons, or gang-troll and worm, with one ounce or weight, fished slowly and close to the shore.

Players' Bid Turned Down

NEW YORK (AP)—The major league all-star teams for 1964 again will be chosen by the players, coaches and managers, commissioner Ford Frick said Thursday.

The game will be played at New York's Shea Stadium on July 7.

A recommendation by the player representatives to return the voting to the fans "in order to stir up more interest" was rejected on the grounds it was "not practical."

SEATTLE (AP)—Earl Averill's home run over the left field fence gave Seattle Rainiers a 1-0 win over Denver Thursday in a Pacific Coast League baseball game.

It will be bullets and shot instead of baseballs, and competition will be at two sites.

At the club's Goldstream grounds will be a merchandise trap shoot, which gets under way at 1 p.m. and is open to all shotguns. Shooters will be classified according to ability and beginners as well as experts should have chances of grabbing some of the prizes.

Shells will be available at the grounds.

Centrefire events commence about 1 p.m.

Shooters will fire 90 shots and can pick up a possible 900 points in both classifications.

Competitors must fire at both rifle and centrefire in order to qualify for individual awards and collect points for four-man teams.

Contestants will also be firing for national classification.

The host club has entered two pistol teams and expects strong competition from handgunners representing Nanaimo, Parksville, Port Alberni and Victoria clubs.

Junior Soccer League Is Only Answer—Day

A junior soccer team in operation next season, and a full league in operation the following year is "the only answer," says Doug Day, who was re-elected president of the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association Wednesday.

"On the mainland," Day said, "they want to drop the word 'junior' from the minor soccer title and let the Pacific Coast League run the junior division."

"We feel we'd rather operate a team on our own next season," he said.

The following year the association hopes to have enough boys graduating from Division I to operate a junior league.

"Actually, despite our name, we've never had a junior team," said Day.

Also on the new executive are Lou Parker, vice-president; Don Stevenson, secretary; and Jack Bowers, treasurer.

MONTREAL (CP)—

Kenny Wharram, a diminutive right-winger with the Chicago Black Hawks, is National Hockey League's choice as the player best combining good manners and top ability in the season just finished.

His selection as winner of the Lady Byng Memorial trophy was announced Thursday.

The choice of a Black Hawk as the Lady Byng winner is somewhat of a rarity in recent NHL history. The last Hawk to win it was Bill Mosienko in the 1944-45 season, 19 years ago.

Besides being honored as the player "adjudged to have exhibited the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct combined with a high standard of playing ability," Wharram gets $1,500 from the league.

For heading the poll with 120 points, he receives $1,000. The other $500 is made up of $250 for leading both the first-half and second-half polls.

SIXTH IN SCORING

Wharram, at 30 a five-year regular with Chicago who is only five-foot-nine and 155 pounds, collected 80 of a possible 90 points to go with his first half record of 40. He scored 39 goals and had 32 assists for 71 points, enough to place him sixth in league scoring. He picked up only nine minor penalties.

Dave Keon, the Toronto Maple Leaf centre who won the trophy the previous two seasons, was runner-up with 69 points and gets $500. Third was Camille Henry of New York Rangers with 50 points.

Others who received points were Bobby Hull, Chicago, 28; Phil Goyette, New York, 21; Murray Oliver, Boston Bruins, 13; Alex Delvecchio, Detroit Red Wings, 11; George Armstrong, Toronto, 6; Red Kelly, Toronto, 2; Ab McDonald, Chicago, 2; Jean Beliveau, Montreal, 1; Andy Hebenton, Boston, 1.

PISTOL EVENT

Slated for the club's range at Esquimalt Lagoon is another match in the new Vancouver Island Shooting League. This one is a registered pistol tournament and handgunners will begin competition at 10 a.m. with rifle events.

Centrefire events commence about 1 p.m.

Shooters will fire 90 shots and can pick up a possible 900 points in both classifications.

Hirabayashi has competed against teams from Hungary, Roumania, Yugoslavia, Korea, the Philippines, Indonesia and Japan.

Scots Will Throw Best Rugby Punch At B.C. All-Stars

Memories are good in Scotland and that country's touring rugby club doesn't plan to take any chances on a defeat at Macdonald Park next Wednesday night.

Team manager Charlie Drummond plans to load his Scottish club with internationals for the Victoria match against the B.C. All-Stars, says Dave MacKenzie, president of the Victoria Rugby Union, who has just arrived back in the city from a trip to Scotland.

MacKenzie says Drummond has been cautioned not to take the B.C. side lightly by Scottish members of the British Lions, who toured Canada in 1959 and needed a converted try in the closing minutes to edge the B.C. stars 16-11.

Drummond told MacKenzie he plans to have his club play a wide-open game, counting on speed and mobility to offset the expected hard tackling of the Canadians.

TWO IN EAST

The Scots open their tour Saturday in Toronto and play another Ontario club Monday before heading for Victoria. They tackle the Western Canada All-Stars at Vancouver on May 16 and wind up their Canadian visit at Montreal on May 19.

The B.C. and Western Canada sides will wind up a two-game training series Saturday at Vancouver's Brockton Park.

Stolen Credit Card Trail Leads to Slain Boy's Body

HILLSVILLE, Va. (AP)—FBI agents, following a trail from Massachusetts to Georgia through an ex-convict's use of stolen credit cards, have found the body of a missing eight-year-old New Jersey boy—the third such discovery in little more than a month.

While medical authorities checked for the cause of the boy's death, police sought to link it with Joseph Francis Bryan Jr., 25, of Audubon, N.J., already in custody in Sumter, S.C., on charges of kidnapping two other boys.

Bryan, one of the FBI's 10 most-wanted criminals when he was arrested last Tuesday in New Orleans, has been charged with kidnapping 10-year-old John David Robinson of Mount Pleasant, S.C., and eight-year-old Dennis Burke of Humboldt, Tenn.

The body of young Robinson, who disappeared from his home Feb. 27, was found March 31 in a shallow grave near Hallandale, Fla. The Burke boy had not been harmed when he was found with Bryan at the time of his arrest. Dennis had been missing from his home for four days.

CRITICISM by Labor members of U.K. parliament has been levelled at Maj.-Gen. John Cubbon, British commander in Aden directing the fight against rebel Bedouins, for saying without supporting evidence that two slain British soldiers were beheaded and their heads paraded through Taiz, Yemen's diplomatic capital.

Scientific Research Into Aged Urged

OTTAWA (CP)—One of Canada's foremost medical researchers said Thursday that basic research—not just food, shelter and social games—is the prime need in dealing with the problems of the aged.

Dr. Hans Selye, director of the Institute of Experimental Medicine and Surgery at the University of Montreal, said the federal government should give all-out backing to a few scientific pursuits rather than diffuse its efforts over a wide field.

In a speech to the voluntary committee on health, made up of individual MPs and senators, Dr. Selye made a plea for federal help for research studies on the problems of aging.

He urged the government to search out talent that could be subsidized for scientific investigation.

Dr. Selye who introduced the concept of stress as a health factor, said medical scientists have already produced heart troubles in animals by treating them with certain adrenal hormones and sodium salts. Under stress, the animals have developed acute signs of heart diseases.

Using the experimental model as a test object, doctors have shown that certain potassium or magnesium salts can prevent experimental stress-induced cardiac deaths, he said.

ATTACK AGING PROBLEMS
Similarly, work in the field of calciphylaxis has shown that the problems of aging can be attacked. Calciphylaxis is a newly discovered biologic mechanism through which the body can selectively send calcium to certain organs or prevent the calcification of tissues, depending on conditions.

In old people, this derangement of the distribution of calcium results in brittle bones, hardened tissues, hardened arteries, cataracts and stiff joints—all signs of aging.

Dr. Selye said medical researchers have made animals appear to be old—with hardening of the arteries, wrinkling skin, loss of hair and other signs of senility—by overdosing them with certain vitamin-D compounds.

"All these changes could be prevented through the proper readjustment of calciphylactic reactivity," he said.

These experiments, he argued, showed that research on aging problems could do more than just looking after the elderly in a social sense.

NOT QUITTING

Hoover Marks Up 40 Years in FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty years and seven U.S. presidents ago, a young justice department lawyer was summoned to the office of the attorney-general, Harlan Fiske Stone.

"Young man," Stone told John Edgar Hoover, 29, "I want you to be acting director of the bureau of investigation."

That launched Hoover on a career unparalleled in the annals of U.S. law enforcement.

Hoover's name was to become a byword for relentless, incorruptible and scientific crime-fighting.

Sunday will be the 40th anniversary of that historic promotion. And Hoover, now 69, shows no sign of quitting.

He will reach the compulsory retirement age of 70 next Jan. 1. But President Johnson is expected to waive the requirement in Hoover's case. Thus the stoic, FBI boss may be expected to stay at the helm as long as he feels fit. His aides report him to be in top physical condition.

A lifelong bachelor — he never wanted to marry because of the competition the FBI would give his wife — Hoover lives in an old brick home in north west Washington. One housekeeper attends him.

His abiding interest continues to be the 14,000-man FBI — including 6,000 agents — which he took over in 1924 when it was cluttered with political hacks and incompetents.

Before he accepted the job, he told Stone he could only do so on two conditions: That the bureau be divorced from politics, and that appointments and promotions be based purely on ability with the bureau responsible only to the attorney-general.

"I wouldn't give it to you under any other conditions," Stone said.

For the first 10 years of his career as director Hoover conducted a thorough housecleaning of the bureau.

In the 1930s his agents were called on to wage an aggressive campaign against gangsters across the U.S., whose activity was increasing in the aftermath of prohibition.

Those were the days when John Dillinger and Machine Gun Kelly and the Barker-Karpis gang were subdued by the FBI — Alvin Karpis by Hoover himself.

During the Second World War the bureau was given the added chore of guarding against espionage, sabotage and subversion. The intelligence function continued into the cold war years.

But Hoover's greatest pride after 40 years is that law enforcement has become a profession of honor to be aspired to by young people.

FINAL DECISION WHEN DEATH LOOMS

Priest's Fast Into 14th Day

CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — "I had no reports or charges of brutality on behalf of the state police, with one exception. This exception is being investigated."

Since he was seized on a charge of inciting to riot and assaulting an officer — "I unknowingly touched a policeman's arm as he swung a stick at the head of a boy" — Hewett has taken only small quantities of liquid.

Rev. Clayton Kennedy Hewett, arrested during a bloody demonstration in the streets here April 24, said he won't eat until Pennsylvania's governor, William W. Scranton, "admits there has been police brutality and talks to the people who were beaten."

When asked for comment on Hewett's statement, a spokesman for Scranton said:

"Gov. Scranton said he has

"I'll worry about myself then," said Hewett, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Atonement in nearby Morton which has about 500 member families, perhaps two dozen Negro.

He was transferred Monday from a makeshift jail in a converted garage to Chester Hospital after collapsing.

The 37-year-old crew-cut six-footer is losing more than two pounds a day in the fast. He's down to 162 from a usual 190.

A father of six children, aged six months to 15, the episcopal priest said he joined Negro civil rights "because segregation, intentional or not, must end."

DRINKS TO LIVE

"I know if I want to live to fight another day I have to take them," he said in an interview.

His physician says Hewett, with intravenous nourishment and occasional sips of juice and water, can last perhaps another week or two before reaching a critical stage.

Cadets to Attend Huge Mainland Religious Rites

Victoria army, navy and air force cadets will travel to Vancouver this weekend to participate Sunday in the largest military religious ceremony held on the lower mainland in years.

They will be joined by 3,000 members of cadet corps representing Vancouver, New Westminster, Alberni and Port Alberni.

Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing will take a salute at the entrance to Stanley Park as well as inspect the cadets.

The parade will proceed to Brockton Oval where Protestant and Roman Catholic services will be held.

COLUMBIA HEARING

Evidence 'Throttled' MPs' Charge

OTTAWA (CP)—Anger flared again today at the Columbia River examination where a professional engineer opposed the 1961 treaty and protocol endorsed by his employer. Some MPs charged that evidence was being throttled.

Richard Deane, chief electrical engineer for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. which is the largest industrial complex on the Columbia in Canada, called for abolition of the controversial High Arrow Dam.

He said he speaks for himself and is on leave of absence. His company testified earlier before the Commons external affairs committee hearing.

He said he feels it is "extremely unfortunate" and unfair that the committee has the alternative of accepting or rejecting the treaty and no chance to suggest changes.

Anger first showed when he attempted to read the names of 24 other professional engineers from the Kootenay district who endorse his brief.

BAN BRIEF

A majority of the committee argued that this should not be allowed, and enforced it with a vote. They also voted against having the Deane brief read into the public record. This ban has applied to all other submissions.

"Our purpose is not to curtail evidence," commented C. J. M. Willoughby (PC—Kamloops) at one point.

Lawrence E. Kindt (PC—MacLeod) said the committee must wake up. It was "throttling" evidence and had spent the first 35 minutes in procedural wrangling.

"What is taking place is a disgrace — an absolute disgrace," Mr. Kindt said when Marvin Gelber (L—York South) successfully moved that the names of the 24 supporting engineers not be read out. Chairman John Matheson (L—Leeds) said the 24, if named, should be available for questioning.

James Byrne (L—Kootenay East) said Mr. Kindt and the New Democrats want to change the rules for every witness. He called the Kindt assertions absolutely false.

Later, Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) objected to criticism that Mr. Deane's testimony was wandering from technical details and said he was getting tired of "these throttling efforts."

Still later, Donald S. Macdonald (L—Toronto Rosedale), who as parliamentary secretary to the justice minister has been a frequent examiner of witnesses, walked angrily from the committee room saying that Mr. Kindt and others were seeking to stop him asking fair questions.

Mr. Deane said that not all the 24 endorsing engineers from the Kootenay district—the area most affected by the proposed Columbia basin power and flood control project—work for Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company. He had been approached by others who wanted to support his views, he said, but had confined the endorers to those who knew the High Arrow region as well as residents.

He said he differed from Cominco's position but admired the company's decision to let him speak for himself.

The treaty and protocol are an example of subordinating Canadian interests to those of the United States, the Communist party of Canada argued today.

The party opposes the 1961 treaty with the U.S.

Canada Plans Talks on UN Peace Force

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pearson said last night the Canadian government is considering holding confidential discussions with some United Nations member countries aimed eventually at setting up a collective stand-by peace force.

The prime minister said, as a first stage, discussions would be confined to nations which have already taken steps to establish stand-by units for UN service, to be followed later by a more formal approach to other governments concerned.

Mr. Pearson, delivering a Dag Hammarskjöld memorial lecture at Ottawa's Carleton University, was expanding on his recent proposal for a stand-by force drawn from several nations but set up outside the UN's constitutional framework.

He said if the UN is unable to agree on permanent arrangements for a stand-by force "members who believe that stand-by arrangements should be made could discharge their own responsibility, individually and collectively, by organizing such a force for use by the United Nations."

Metro Board Bid Opposed by Lort

By MARGE GILROY

Improved library services for the Greater Victoria Area will call for changes in the financial arrangements but librarian John Lort sees no need to change the set-up of the present library board.

Mr. Lort defended the present set-up while attacking a proposal by city manager Dennis Young that a metropolitan library board be established.

Earlier this year in a report prepared by city manager Dennis Young for the inter-municipal library committee it was recommended that the provincial government be petitioned to establish a metropolitan library board under its own legislation.

The report stated that the right of the taxpayers to determine how money should be spent must be safeguarded and a continuity in the development of the different municipal services must be ensured.

The Public Libraries Act is inadequate, Mr. Young said.

He claimed it is an excellent example of a professional group's well-intentioned attempts to embody broad academic principles and aspirations into specific, detailed and binding legislation.

GOOD AND BAD

This, he said, is done on the unstated and probably unadmitted assumption that the professionals are the "good guys," whose aims and ideas must be protected from the politicians who are the "bad guys."

Commenting on the report Mr. Lort said, "Library boards do consider themselves to be the agents of the municipal councils or school boards by whom they are appointed, and are just as cautious in the spending of public funds as are their parent bodies."

"It would be difficult, if not impossible to find evidence that any board of any of the 15 public libraries of the province has insisted upon, let alone abuse this privilege (to draw up their own budgets)."

The Library Board acts as a buffer between the community and the library staff and so long as the Victoria Public Library remains a public library it would be controlled by the "Public Libraries Act," said Mr. Lort.

Cadets Eat French-Style Conversation Cake

"Donnez-moi la beurre, s'il vous plait" will soon become a standard method of asking for the butter in Royal Roads' dining room.

As part of a government plan to make tri-service cadets more fluent in Canada's two major languages, cadets will speak only French at a new "French table."

Cadets at College Militaire Royal at Saint-Jean, Quebec, will use French and English on alternate fortnights as the language of the day.

The conversational practice is designed to help cadets with their third and fourth years which they take at Royal Military College at Kingston.

At RMC all English-speaking cadets will be required, during their third year, to pass at least one course given in the French language.

French-speaking cadets will be required to pass a similar course given in English. The increased military emphasis on bilingualism was made official by Defence Minister Heller last week when he announced the new regulations at RMC.

He said that improved skill in a second language would aid the armed forces both as a uni-tying force within Canada and as international peace force members.

In addition to the French table Royal Roads is beginning French conversation classes for staff members and their wives.

About 20 students are expected.

French is a compulsory subject for all tri-service cadets in the first two years of their four-year university course.

All three military colleges supplement classroom instruction with modern language laboratories where tape recorders enable an instructor to simultaneously coach 20 students on pronunciation.

Wearing headphones the students sit in rows of separate booths listening to the instructor speak a phrase.

They repeat the phrase into families they speak only French.

Dr. Ronald Oldham, associate professor of French at Royal Roads, advised patience on the question of bilingualism.

"Some tend to go off the deep end in demanding quick results."

"I don't think you can push another language down the throats of those who do not wish it. What we should do is foster reapproachment."

"Teaching cadets bilingual skill is an excellent step. It should lead to toleration and understanding."

Second Man Pleads Guilty To Saanich Bank Robbery

10-Year Sentence Given Montrealer

A second man today pleaded guilty to armed robbery of the Bank of Montreal's Cook and Quadra branch April 24.

A third man is being held in the United States, and one was sentenced Thursday to 10 years for the $7,300 holdup—accounting for three of the four men believed to have robbed the bank.

Ronald Joseph Dagenais, 28, a Vancouver Skid Row alcoholic with a record of petty crimes, pleaded guilty in Saanich police court this morning.

He had given himself up to Detroit city police after his $1,600 share of the loot was stolen from his girl friend.

Jean Cheslain Robitaille, of Montreal, Thursday afternoon, was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary for his part in the holdup.

KRAFT ARRESTED

And U.S. police and immigration officials arrested Clarence William Kraft, of Victoria, in Atlantic City, New Jersey, on Thursday.

He was picked up one hour after police there were sent his description.

Kraft was standing on a street corner in the downtown area, and was arrested without incident, said police.

A fourth man is still being sought.

Robitaille and Dagenais both gave themselves up, and Saanich detectives do not consider either of them to be the brains of the operation.

BOTH USE DRUGS

Both are sick men—Robitaille with ulcers, and Dagenais with epilepsy. Both men use drugs.

In the dock this morning, Dagenais swayed as he stood and looked sick. He was flown back here Tuesday night handcuffed to Saanich detective George Walton who arrested him in Detroit.

Robitaille winced in the dock Thursday afternoon as Magistrate William Ostler sentenced him to the penitentiary.

Det.-Sgt. Joseph Armstrong

DAGENAIS ... shaking told the court today that Dagenais was one of three men who entered the bank and scooped up $7,300.

All the men had obtained guns in Vancouver before coming here to pull the holdup, said Sgt. Armstrong.

Dagenais today said only that he was guilty, and that he wanted to stress that he gave himself up.

He was remanded a week for sentence.

Saanich police stressed that without the massive co-operation of police and immigration officials across the continent, all three men would still be at large.

"In Detroit, Windsor, Calgary and Toronto, the co-operation couldn't be better. It was a hundred per cent," said Saanich detectives.

In New York, 300 men were assigned to search intensively a downtown area, and "everywhere I went, I could have all the men and cars I wanted," said a Saanich detective.

FAST HELP

Sgt. Armstrong also pointed out that quick help from U.S. immigration officials had led to Kraft's arrest.

Kraft's description was telephoned to Atlantic City police by Dominick Rinaldi, district director of the immigration service.

Kraft, a salesman here, will not be back before Monday. He is being held in the Hudson County Jail pending a deportation hearing, and some other police departments are reported interested in questioning him.

Saanich has first crack, however—as the only department with a warrant out.

Children Blamed

Naughty children are mainly responsible for a bad start to B.C.'s forest fire season.

A provincial forest service official said today there have been 91 fires across B.C. during the first week of the season, which started May 1.

He said the initial rash of fires are mostly "nuisance" blazes caused by children playing with matches.

Soviets Catching Up To America—Morgan

Three years from now Russia will have a higher standard of living than Canada and the United States, says Nigel Morgan, leader of the Communist Party in British Columbia.

Just back from a study tour of Soviet Russia, Mr. Morgan said the Soviet's 200,000,000 citizens already enjoy better working conditions than Canadians or Americans.

"Office and factory workers have a seven-hour day, while those in heavy, exacting occupations are on a six-hour day. And the average working week is 35 hours."

Mr. Morgan said the people of Russia know a lot more about Canada than Canadians know about Russia.

"They are much interested in our Peace and Columbia River power developments and they cannot understand why British Columbia doesn't develop more of its natural resources."

Mr. Morgan said relations between Russia and the United States are happier than they have ever been, and the Soviet government looks upon Britain as a mediator between communism and capitalism.

"Everyone is very friendly to Canada and there is every indication Russia will buy millions more bushels of wheat from Canada."

Mr. Morgan will address a meeting of Victoria Communists in the Williams Hall, Broughton Street, tonight at 8.

He says there are some 200 members of the Communist party on Vancouver Island and about 1,600 in B.C.

From This . . .

Arthur Mayse

We have in Saanich a fireman by the name of Bob Slater, whose appendix one day kindled a four-alarm blaze in his basement.

He was rushed to hospital—by the department's ever-ready ambulance, naturally—and in due time lay neatly stitched in a Royal Jubilee bed.

Time passed. The bell that ends visiting hours rang its warning. To a veteran smoke-eater, even in a post-operative fog, this was a familiar and imperative toxin.

Out of his bed lunged fireman Slater, while stitches popped and nurses squeaked, his hands groping for the gear of his trade.

The rig must roll, and he with it.

That was quite a few years back. Today, at Number Three hall on Shelbourne, Robert A. Slater is a fireman still. On duty Sundays, cutting grass or polishing metal, and listening for the alarm bell, he watches the cars go by.

"Lucky stiffs!" he grumbles. But he wouldn't trade his dangerous, demanding job for any other.

This we learned when we dropped in at No. 3 for a burning permit the other evening. My companion was gone from the office when I turned with permit in hand.

We found her in the hall, looking up at the big red multipurpose fire engine with an enchanted, and speculative, smile.

"I wonder," she asked, "how one works the siren?"

Wisely, Bob Slater kept that information to himself. But he did fill us in on other details.

Like every Saanich fireman, he is required to be proficient in all departments of the service. On one run, he may be wheeling the rig. Next time out, he will like as not be riding the rear step, knees bent and heels lifted to absorb the jolting of a heavy-sprung vehicle at emergency speed.

"You hang on," he said, "and keep those knees bent. I learned that the hard way . . . hit a bump, bounced, and jammed my head between ladder rungs."

He had a prompt answer to a question which puzzles many drivers: when an emergency vehicle needs the road, should traffic on both sides stop?

"It should," he said, "although a lot of drivers don't. The cars coming toward us worry us a lot more than the ones we pass."

Bob, whose off-duty home is at 4414 Pat Bay Highway, passed on a few of the time and life-saving tricks a fireman learns.

Hydrants have a nasty trick of disappearing on a dark and rain-swept night. Crews try to keep them clear of brush, but in a fast-growing climate, that's by no means easy.

"So what we often do in the bad spots," Bob explains, "is paint an indicator on a handy power pole. It may be an arrow or a white circle and dot."

"When we're driving on our own time, especially at night, we're constantly memorizing skylines. Knowing the general lay of the land is a big help, especially with all the new subdivisions to cover."

He returned to the office, but was back with a card before we had time to more than wonder if the siren was controlled by a pedal or a button.

On the card, our place and its neighbors were blocked out, with driveways marked and nearest hydrant indicated.

"These help too," Bob said. "We index the cards and we're adding to them all the time."

Superstitions? None, we were told; but there's unease in a hall when the spell between alarms is more-than-average long. The next run is sure to be a mean one—perhaps to a smoke-filled industrial basement that must be searched for possible victims before the fight begins.

Firemen spit black for days after the scene. Sometimes they come out feet first.

But the call-inhaling specialist Bob Slater hates more than any other is the one that takes him to a home where a baby has smothered in its crib.

"Those," he says, "are the ones that hurt worst."

WOMAN FIGHTS FOR LIFE

A woman is fighting for her life in Royal Jubilee Hospital today after a car struck her as she walked, with her five-year-old son Thursday night.

Mrs. Sylvia Jean Bridges, 3333 Glasgow, has been in critical condition since she was rushed to hospital from the accident scene on Cloverdale near Quadra.

She immediately underwent surgery for head injuries, but the hospital this morning reported she is still on the critical list.

Her son Stephen was unhurt except for bruised knees.

JUVENILE DRIVER

Saanich police say Mrs. Bridges was struck by a car driven by a 17-year-old girl.

The girl apparently lost control of the vehicle, which was westbound. It crossed the road to the south side, hit Mrs. Bridges and jumped the curb.

A naval-civilian fire officer, Alan Day, 1066 Cloverdale, was one of the first on the scene, and gave her first aid until Saanich ambulance arrived.

Mrs. Bridges is the wife of William W. Bridges.

The couple have two other children, Lorraine, 14, and Mark, 18 months.

MRS. MORA . . . from Honolulu

U.S. Woman To Run Residences

University of Victoria today announced the appointment of Mrs. Lola Mae Mora as director of the new residence halls for women at the university.

Chosen from several applications for the position, Mrs. Mora comes to Victoria from Hawaii, where for the past three years she has acted as house-mother at Kamehameha School for Girls in Honolulu.

Mrs. Mora attended the College of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Wash.; Western College of Education, Dillon, Mont., and Montana State College of Bozeman, Mont. She taught school in Montana for several years and was associated with Montana State University for two years.

The new residence director will take up her duties in September when the new women's accommodations will open.

School Musicians On Two-Day Mainland Tour

Fifty-five musicians from Greater Victoria secondary schools are making a two-day tour of the B.C. mainland.

The Greater Victoria School Symphony Orchestra left by bus this morning for William Beagle School in Surrey. They were playing one concert for the school, visiting classes there, and they play a public concert this evening.

Saturday morning they leave for Harrison Hot Springs where orchestra and string ensemble will perform afternoon concerts at the hotel.

The group will return Saturday night.

The members, from secondary schools throughout the city, assemble twice weekly under their conductor, Mrs. Violet DeLong.

Sweets to Keep 'Mom' Away From Baking, This Sunday

By PENNY SAVER

Only two shopping days left until Mother's Day. If you already have her gift, then why not a special treat for her? If she is like most mothers, she plans meals, and especially desserts, to please her family.

Since this Sunday is her special day, why not take over in the cooking department and treat her to a favorite dessert she didn't plan or make?

Treats I found today are guaranteed to help you and keep her out of the kitchen.

Taste-tempting cherry meringues will have her mouth watering before they are even served. These are a chewy Dutch meringue filled with cherries and almonds. Price is 50 cents a dozen.

Another special cherry treat is maraschino cherry flips—a delightful combination of shortbread and cherries. Price of these is also 50 cents a dozen.

Something new in this shop is apple tarts. Price is 5 cents each and tarts have a light pastry shell and topping.

Another favorite is real lemon cheese tarts, also priced at 5 cents each. Shop uses their own special recipe for the lemon cheese and these also have a light pastry shell.

Other treats sold here include tea dainties priced at 60 cents a dozen, cream horns, 10 cents each, and a wide variety of cookies priced from 18 to 35 cents a dozen.

Want to give mother a special treat on Sunday? Then call Penny at 382-3131 for name and location of this shop.

THE BETTER HALF

DEAR ABBY...

It Pays To Be Honest!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The boy who sits in front of me in history is very smart and gets 100's on almost all his tests. I was stuck during a test last week and asked him for some answers. He gave them to me. I thought, "I didn't know it until we got our papers back. He got 100 and I got 65! I was plenty mad and told him I thought he was a dirty cheat. I admit I wasn't very honest to ask him for the answers, but don't you think he was twice as dishonest to have purposely given them to me wrong?"

CHEATED

DEAR CHEATED: Don't expect to find an honest partner for a crooked deal.

DEAR ABBY: What can a woman of 42 do to get a compliment out of her husband? I have spent hours in the beauty parlor getting a new hair-do. No comment. I bought material and made myself a beautiful outfit in his favorite color—blue. No comment. I use cosmetics artistically and even searched for a subtle perfume I thought he'd like. No comment. Everyone else tells me I am a fine-looking woman, but he never says a word. I know he loves me and our children, but sometimes I think, "Oh, what the heck!"

NO COMPLIMENTS

DEAR NO: You're lucky. Some women get plenty of sweet talk from their husbands, and nothing else. By the way, when was the last time you complimented him?

DEAR ABBY: Last night I served blueberry pie for dessert and my husband, whom I shall call Dr. Jekyll, turned into a regular Mr. Hyde. He stormed around like a wild man, saying he never cared for blueberry pie because it took him two days to get the seeds out of his teeth, and asked why I insist on showing it down his throat. Abby, I have been baking blueberry pie for 26 years (it's my favourite) and I always thought my husband liked it. I felt so bad I cried all night. Was I wrong or was he?

BLUEBERRY MARY

DEAR MARY: If a man doesn't like something his wife cooks (or bakes), he shouldn't wait 26 years to tell her. Tell Mr. Hyde you are no mind reader. And let him eat cake!

CONFIDENTIAL TO SAN ANTONIO ROSE: It's anybody's guess as to why he changed his name twice, but if I were you, I would quit guessing and find out.

Spring and summer evenings wear a dramatic look when you don this lovely brush-stroked silk surah, all cling until it bursts into a dramatic godet flounce. Note its bareness... This is the keynote for summer.

Adam-Whitehead Marriage Vows

President John Herrington heard the vows in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints when Karen Leigh Whitehead became the bride of Richard Bell Lorraine Adam.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Whitehead, 3510 Maplewood Road. The groom's parents are R. B. L. Adam, 665 Baker Street, and the late Mrs. Adam.

Pink and white carnations, tulips and other spring flowers decorated the church for the evening ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a short-length gown of white peau de soie satin that was styled with a scoop neckline and lily point sleeves. The chapel-length veil, enhanced with seed pearls, misted from a coronet of pearls and rhinestones. Pink and white roses were in the bouquet.

The only attendant, Miss Carolyn Adams, wore an aqua satin brocade dress, matching shoes and hat and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

George Pears was the best man and Gerald Whitehead, brother of the bride, ushered guests to their pews.

H. Allabarton, brother-in-law of the bride, proposed the toast to her happiness at a reception in her parents' home.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rentz, 1611 Warren Gardens, wish to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Eileen May, to Mr. Steven Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walsh, 936 Delwood Road. The wedding will take place on Saturday, May 30, in Hope Lutheran Church with Rev. Lester M. Carlson officiating.

To receive their guests the bride and groom stood beneath a garden trellis which was decorated with pink and white carnations and white wedding bells. Baskets of pink tulips and other spring flowers flanked the miniature "garden" and "picket fence" that formed a background.

White tulle surrounded the three-tier wedding cake that centred the head table, which was covered with an imported French lace cloth. White candles in crystal candelabra completed the decor. Tiny white doves and wedding rings that topped the cake were repeated in the house decorations.

Mrs. F. R. Roberts presided at the refreshment table. Leaving for a honeymoon trip to Eagle Bay where they will stay at Myerling Cottage, the bride wore a turquoise suit, white accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

On their return, the newlyweds will make their home at 665 Baker Street.

Clubwomen's News

Consumers' Group—Norman Tonks, provincial entomologist, spoke to members of the local branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada at a recent meeting. He described use of pesticides and insecticides and explained that Homer in 1000 BC had advised use of sulphur for insect control and that the Chinese, many hundreds of years ago, used arsenic for the same purpose. Today, as insects become immune to sprays, scientists are finding it hard to keep ahead of the problem. The speaker stressed need for careful handling in all cases. It was announced that plans had been finalized to have a CAC booth at the Victoria Exhibition in Memorial Arena.

34 Uvic Appointees a Varied Crew

By AB KENT

By September, University of Victoria will have gained, besides a new president enough new professors to staff a faculty.

They number 34 and range from scuba divers doing biological research under the sea to an astrophysicist studying outer space.

More than half of them are in the humanities and half of these will join the English department.

The others include a concert pianist — no stranger to Victoria — language experts, an artist, historians and a philosopher.

Senior appointments total 12 — five each of associate and assistant professors and two full professors — plus four lecturers and 18 instructors.

About 20 of the posts are newly-created in order to fulfill the university's commitment for increased course offerings and academic standing.

New faces will come from such diverse places as Malta, Spain, New Zealand and France. Topping the list with the widest experience and most degrees is former Victorian Dr. P. Max Edwards, who has just completed six years with the department of modern languages in University of Otago, Dunedin, New Zealand.

French-born, Dr. Edwards attended Victoria College and made his home here until 11 years ago, after which he studied in the east and worked at University of B. C.

His teaching experience began 18 years ago in England and Venezuela, before he came to Canada.

He has a bachelor's degree from UBC, a master's degree from both Columbia and Harvard Universities, and a doctorate from University of Pennsylvania.

Although he is a linguist and history major, Dr. Edwards is known locally as a piano recitalist. Since going to New Zealand he has also become interested in the cello and has done some composing.

He knows eight languages, of which his specialties are Russian, Rumanian, French and Spanish, and his interests include the study of linguistics. His publications include Russian and Rumanian grammar dictionaries and Russian grammar texts.

Biology department has appointed Dr. Alan P. Austin, marine specialist at Royal University of Malta, and Dr. Derek V. Ellis, marine ecologist, now at University of Manitoba zoology department.

Dr. Austin has five years' experience as marine biologist in Great Britain, Scandinavia and the Mediterranean.

Dr. Ellis has done field work in Denmark, Greenland and the Canadian Arctic. Both men are accomplished underwater swimmers, who expect to undertake research into west coast marine life.

Colin Scarfe, son of UBC education dean Neville Scarfe, will become the first full-time appointee in astronomy, effective next January.

CONTINUE RESEARCH

He is working on his doctorate in astrophysics at the University of Cambridge and expects to continue research at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory.

The faculty of education will get two B. C. teachers each with more than 10 years' experience: John J. Sheppy, who attended North Saanich High School and Victoria College, who will teach physics, and John P. Doberiner, of UBC, who will teach art and art methods.

Another UBC graduate, Dr. Walter M. Bars, an associate research physicist with Atomic Energy of Canada, and an American, Dr. Robert Odeh, active in the establishment of the University of Oregon computing centre, will join their pure science colleagues here in September.

WARMING UP BACKSTAGE Danish gymnasts made sure there were no kinks in their performance at the Memorial Arena Thursday night.

Ballet, Comedy, Tumbling — Danes Call it Gymnastics

By MARGE GILROY

Put 24 Danish carpenters, farmers, office workers, teachers and gardeners together and look what you get—comedy, ballet and tumbling, all in the name of gymnastics.

That is what 4,000 spectators witnessed Thursday night at the Memorial Arena.

For two hours a team of Danish gymnasts danced, jumped and somersaulted in an athletic display of physical prowess and muscular co-ordination.

Girls skipped through hoops, at half-time.

juggled bouncing balls and balanced on high bars all in rhythmical harmony to the music of Scarlatti, Brahms and Schubert.

But it was the boys who drew the "oohs" and "ahs" as they vaulted through the air, head first, then feet first. They never missed as they performed handstands and spring board dives and somersaulted with rapidity and finesse.

Even pianist Ernest Rasmussen exhibited his physical skill with a tinkling finger-exercise at half-time.

To prove they were not robots the gymnasts made one appearance in native Danish costumes and gaily tripped through a folk dance.

Gymnastics is a way of life in Denmark, training starts early and continues through a lifetime. This group of 24 was selected from various gymnasiums throughout Denmark. They are top gymnasts, but not professionals, and perform only those physical exercises that every Danish gymnast practices.

Free movement is the basis of their body-building exercises, not physical jerks. Girls move with grace as they slide and skip through their exercises while boys exhibit strength and flexibility as they rotate arms, legs, neck and trunk in every direction.

The team brought here by the Canadian Association of Physical Health Education and Recreation left today for points east, and in July they will terminate the year's tour at New York's World Fair.

Angry Actor Blasts Famed Hotel Chain

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — An angry Peter Lawford Thursday accused the owners of the Hilton Hotels Corp. of tactlessly embarrassing him, his wife and family by suing him for an unpaid bill.

Lawford said he was not concerned with the amount of money involved, $6,762, but by what he called the lack of "decency and taste" on the part of the hotel chain.

The suit, filed in superior court Monday, charged the bill was amassed between August, 1962, and November, 1963.

The actor acknowledged that he owed the hotel a personal bill for $4,962, but that the additional $1,800 was unfairly charged against his Chrislaw Productions in the course of shooting the movie, "Johnny Cool," on location at the Beverly-Hilton hotel.

'FREE OF CHARGE'

"They've lumped that $1,800 in with my personal account at the hotel and it isn't right," Lawford said. "It was clearly understood the suites used by our company for interior shots and dressing rooms were to be provided free of charge in exchange for the publicity and goodwill given the hotel in our picture."

Lawford added that Conrad Hilton and his son, Barron, had seen a preview of the film and expressed delight in seeing the hotel prominently photographed in many scenes.

"As far as I'm concerned, you can use the hotel anytime," Lawford quoted Hilton as telling him.

Requiem Performed In Cathedral

A fine performance of Mozart's Requiem by Victoria Choral Society was enjoyed by a large audience in Christ Church Cathedral Wednesday night.

Rodney Webster, who has led the society for four years in several great oratorios, was at his best in guiding the choir from the gentle sotto voce to the sudden breathtaking crescendo passages of The Requiem.

The soloists, beautifully blended in the quartet work, were Pamela Paver, soprano; Eleanor Ashford, contralto; Derek MacDermot, baritone, and Gerard Oteman, tenor. Mozart's Motet, Laudate Dominum, was sung by Bill Dyson, boy soprano, and the Gloria from the Twelfth Mass, sung in English, brought the concert to a thrilling conclusion. Richard Proudman, organist and choirmaster at Christ Church Cathedral, accompanied the program.

'Open Grave' Sold

TORONTO (CP) — The Open Grave, the CBC's modern version of the Resurrection that set off nationwide controversy even before it was televised before Easter, has been sold to the BBC. The documentary-style drama will be shown to British viewers on Whitsunday, May 17.

Catholic Birth-Pill Rule 'Treason to Human Race'

LONDON (Reuters) — A statement by Archbishop John Heenan, leader of Britain's Roman Catholics, reaffirming his church's stand against "artificial" forms of birth control, was frontpage news in Britain today.

Dr. Heenan, Archbishop of Westminster, told Britain's 4,500,000 Catholics Thursday that contraception in all forms was against the law of God and the church. He was referring to suggestions that the next session of the Vatican council in September might give a new ruling on contraception.

In a statement issued in the name of Roman Catholic prelates in England and Wales, he spoke of the "agonizing choice between natural instincts and the law of God."

The Conservative Daily Telegraph, said in an editorial that, according to the encyclical of Pope Pius XI, contraception was against both natural and divine laws.

It added: "If this is the principle, there is no room to discriminate morally between methods, whether mechanical, chemical, or medicinal, of frustrating the purpose of matrimonial intercourse."

"The Roman Church does, however, permit husbands and wives, abstaining from artificial interference, to take advantage of periods at which physiology tells them that fertility is low. If there is a pill which enables such periods to be more accurately predicted, or even lengthened, this is a question which, with larger issues, might be raised . . . at the Vatican council."

The Daily Telegraph added: "There are those who prophesy a 'population explosion' which, unless artificially prevented, will bring worldwide overcrowding, famine, war and unimaginable disasters."

The independent right-wing Daily Express said Dr. Heenan's declaration would be "fiercely challenged," perhaps within his own community, but it was a brave one.

'SORT OF TREASON'

"To such prophets, the Vatican ruling must seem like a sort of treason to the human race. They might, however, concede more often than they do that the resources of this earth are not necessarily limited to those already developed or known. "Nor can they expect to have much effect on a church content of obeying a far higher authority than that of demographers."

The independent right-wing Daily Express said Dr. Heenan's declaration would be "fiercely challenged," perhaps within his own community, but it was a brave one.

ACTOR RETURNS SALARY

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor Charlton Heston returned his entire salary, amounting to more than $100,000, for his work in the movie "Maverick," it was learned today. Heston said he gave the money back because of differences he had with Columbia Studio on the "creative concept" of two sequences.

FBI PROBES CALIFORNIA AIRLINER CRASH

Loaded Gun in Plane Debris

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — A cocked and loaded pistol found in the trail of wreckage left by a Pacific Air Lines plane has brought the FBI into the investigation of Thursday's crash.

All 44 persons aboard the turbo-prop airliner were killed.

A quarter-mile of metal fragments, a garbled tape recording, the gun and bits of the victims' bodies were all the evidence that Civil Aeronautics Board investigators had to work with.

Seconds before the airliner plunged nose first to earth, a garbled message came over its radio, but was lost in a screech of static and electronic squeals. The Federal Aviation Agency had a tape recording of it, however, and investigators hoped it would provide some clue.

The FBI quickly took charge of a cocked and loaded .38-calibre revolver found on the slope. At first it was believed to belong to San Francisco Police Inspector George Lacau, who with his wife, Betty, was a passenger on the plane.

A check in police records, however, showed that none of the three revolvers registered by Lacau had the serial numbers of the weapon found in the wreckage.

China Delays Parley

Soviet Call '5 Years Early'

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China today denounced the Soviet Union's proposal for an international conference of Communist parties this fall as part of a plot "to accelerate an open split in the international Communist movement."

A Peking broadcast said such meeting is not likely within the next four or five years "or even longer."

Peking made the statement in rejecting a Soviet timetable calling for a preparatory Chinese-Soviet meeting this month, to be followed by an international conference of Communist parties in the fall to deal with the split between the two Communist giants.

In a letter sent Thursday to the Soviet Communist party, the Chinese Communists suggested a year from now would be the most appropriate time for a meeting between their two parties.

Peking declared an international meeting of Communist parties required a series of preparatory steps to make it a success.

"Judging by present circumstances," said a New China news agency broadcast monitored in Tokyo, "it might require perhaps four to five years, or even longer, to complete these preparations."

Communist China gave its position in publishing seven letters exchanged between Moscow and Peking since November, 1963.

"Judging by present circumstances, not only is it impossible to hold the two-party talks in May, but it will also be too early to hold them in October," the Chinese reply said.

"We consider it more appropriate to postpone them until sometime in the first half of next year, say May. And if either the Chinese or the Soviet party then considers that the time is still not ripe, they can be further postponed."

Strategic Peaks Held By British

ADEN (Reuters)—British troops were holding two strategic peaks in their operation to secure the tortuous trade route from Aden to Dhala in the north of the South Arabia Federation, a British Middle East command spokesman said here today.

The route runs through the Radfan area where dissident tribesmen have killed four British soldiers in clashes recently.

The British spokesman said that Thursday was the second quiet day for the combined British and Arab force following their successful battle on Tuesday for control of the vital trade route.

The British-backed South Arabia Federation faced a second obstruction of the trade route by dissident Red Wolf tribesmen backed by the neighboring republic of Yemen.

New Quake Rocks Japan

TOKYO (Reuters)—Part of northern Japan was shaken by an earthquake today only hours after a stronger earthquake split open the earth, sunk sections of land and sent geysers shooting into the air in some areas.

The first earthquake, which opened fissures of up to 30 yards long, registered four on a scale of seven, the Japanese meteorological agency said. The second earthquake today registered three.

'GREY MARKET' AT TORONTO

Pep Pills Kill College Student

TORONTO (CP)—A University of Toronto student who was to have completed his college course, three hours later was found dead in his Victoria College room Thursday from an overdose of pep pills. Wayne Bruce MacKenzie, 23, had completed his four-year history course and had just finished three weeks of final examinations. He lost almost 30 pounds during the exam period. An anonymous fourth-year student said today students with access to drugs are operating a "grey market" in pep pills and that the illegal trade is run by students in medicine and related courses.

He said he was offered pills earlier this year but refused because he did not need them. He said the pills are used most frequently by students in highly competitive courses such as medicine and engineering. Meanwhile, members of MacKenzie's family in Burlington, Ont., said he had been "studying too hard" and was probably exhausted.

RCMP investigated the University of Toronto campus for illicit drugs last week but found no evidence they were being sold or used.

BIRTHDAY STROLL is taken by peppery Harry Truman in Washington, D.C., this morning. Truman, who turned 80 today, was famous during his time in office for his brisk walks about U.S. capital and was often accompanied, then as now, by a gaggle of newsmen. A veteran of the old walks is seen here to right of Truman—Ernest B. Vaccaro, Associated Press reporter assigned to White House during Truman term.

'Answer in Few Days' On Alberni Request

OTTAWA—A federal government reply will be given "in the next few days" to a B.C. government request for $750,000 in federal aid to victims of the Good Friday Alberni flood.

Northern Affairs and Resources Minister Arthur Laing told the Commons today he had received a wire from Premier Bennett placing the total amount of aid required at $1.5 million. The premier, he said, proposed that Ottawa provide half, or $750,000.

"This will be discussed and some reply given in the matter in the next few days," Mr. Laing said.

He was answering a question from Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni), who asked if Mr. Laing had received any further word on aid from "the trigger happy and temperamental premier of B.C."

In his reply, Mr. Laing said he did not accept the adjectives used by Mr. Barnett.

Banks Out on Bail Until Appeal Heard

MONTREAL (CP)—Hal C. Banks was liberated today on $25,000 cash bail, pending appeal on his recent conviction on a charge of conspiracy.

Mr. Justice Lucien Tremblay, chief judge of the Quebec Court of Appeal, said "it would have been difficult to justify Banks' detention."

Banks, former president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), was convicted May 1 of conspiring to wound or maim Capt. Henry Francis Walsh, a rival union organizer.

Cpt. Walsh was beaten up behind a hotel in Owen Sound, Ont., Aug. 18, 1957, following differences with the SIU.

Banks' appeal is to be heard at the September term of the appeal court. Mr. Justice Tremblay said the bail will end Sept. 14.

18 KILLED IN MANILA EXPLOSIONS

MANILA (AP)—Two explosions set a six-storey building afire in Manila's crowded market district today, killing at least 18 persons.

Capt. Eduardo Giron of the fire investigation division said 18 bodies had been recovered.

Giron said police reports that 35 had died were speculation. But he said no one had been able to enter the two top floors and possibly more bodies would be found.

Victoria May Get Pro Hockey Again

Move Reported If Denver Fails

Victoria may get professional hockey again next year.

Reports out of the Western Hockey League annual meeting in Seattle say Victoria Cougars would be revived to replace the floundering Denver Invaders.

Jim Kearney, Vancouver Sun columnist, said the Cougars "probably will return to the Western Hockey League for one or two years."

Kearney says Denver is not expected to meet a quota of season ticket sales set by the league as the price of its survival.

Denver is reported to have lost $105,000 last season in its first year of operation and must sell 2,000 season tickets in the next six weeks to retain a WHL franchise.

Kearney says Denver's chances are negligible and the team will be moved to Victoria and thus the franchise would be kept "warm for probable move to San Diego in a couple of seasons." Other WHL teams would guarantee receipts of $187,000 in Victoria, cutting possible losses by the franchise owners—Toronto Maple Leafs.

Cougars have been absent from the league for four years, since Jim Piggott took the club to California and established the Los Angeles Blades. League president Al Leader was in a closed-door meeting in Seattle at noon today and could not be reached for comment.

LIKES IDEA "I haven't heard anything since last fall," said Jack Morgan, manager of Memorial Arena.

"I had a talk with Leader at that time and told him we would entertain the idea of having a team here. The rest of the teams seemed to prefer a team in Victoria instead of Denver."

"I hope this report is true. I would welcome the return of pro hockey and I am sure hockey fans in the city would, too."

Smythe is representing the interests of the Denver franchise—owned by Leafs at the WHL meeting.

The enterprise would pre-suppose eventual National Hockey League status for Vancouver, Kearney quotes Smythe as saying. NHL expansion is inevitable, Smythe said.

"It won't be a matter of adding more teams to the present six-team league. The way I see it, it will come with the formation of another six-team division. Vancouver would be a member of the new division."

Smythe said the biggest stumbling block to a western division of the NHL being formed from the WHL is lack of control of arenas by the teams involved.

PROPER WAY to hold a tiger is "not by the ears," Mayor Ivan Allen said as he presented a Bengal tiger cub to U.S. President Johnson, recently in the soup with dog lovers for the way he played with his pet beagles. CAMBODIAN TANK WINS BORDER CLASH

SAIGON (AP)—A Cambodian tank knocked out a South Vietnamese armored personnel carrier in a border clash today and captured the vehicle and its crew.

Military sources said at least 10 other South Vietnamese vehicles were poised on the frontier, ready to move in and retake the personnel carrier if ordered to do so. It appeared doubtful, however, that the order would be given.

HELLYER backs defence plan

Single Chief Defence Key

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer said today that without a single chief of defence staff the defence department would find its proposed integration of the armed forces "virtually impossible."

Opening a wide-ranging defence debate in the Commons centred on changes in the defence act for integration of the services, Mr. Hellyer said perhaps the most important of the changes is the abolition of chiefs of staff for each service.

Integration meant a saving of $100,000,000 annually in the defence budget. Another $100,000,000 would be diverted for the purchase of weapons.

The minister said 10,000 servicemen would be affected by integration, many of them now performing tasks duplicated in the three forces. This included 20 per cent of the 50,000 men at national defence and other command headquarters.

The end result would be a more streamlined force at no loss of efficiency or effectiveness.

NO REFLECTION Mr. Hellyer said the early retirement of some officers and men was no reflection on their loyalty and courage. They had served Canada well and the armed forces of the country compared with the best in the world.

Integration also meant new career opportunities for men now serving and younger men coming into the force. There was still the need for recruiting and he urged members to encourage young men to look into service careers.

The new look in the armed forces also raised the need for a strong civilian staff. But its task would be simplified by integration since the flow of information now would be coming from one source and not several as at present.

MORE ADVISERS On civilian control, Mr. Hellyer said he intends to revamp the defence council, adding additional civilian advisers, to make it the departmental policy review board where all matters of important policy will be considered.

The defence council in recent years had not been acting in this capacity and had tended to meet less and less frequently.

Earlier the Commons, without debate, agreed to reconstitute its special defence committee which inquired into defence matters during the last session. Mr. Hellyer said the committee hearings had resulted in a better-informed Commons and general public, and also had raised the level of debate on defence matters in Parliament.

Soviet Will Help Sukarno In Bid to Crush Malaysia

JAKARTA (AP)—The official news agency Antara said today the Soviet Union has promised to help Indonesia crush the federation of Malaysia.

Antara said Soviet Ambassador N. A. Michailov promised "the Soviet government and people will keep on helping the Indonesian people in their campaign to crush the neo-colonialist project of Malaysia."

The report added that he affirmed "the Soviet support to the Indonesian struggle is concrete and not merely in words."

Michailov was reported to have added that "the Soviet aid to Indonesia for the implementation of the crush Malaysia until Sukarno halted military activities and recognized the independence and realizing their national developments."

Indonesian President Sukarno's two-point "action command" to his anti-Malaysia volunteers, calls for: Indonesian support for the peoples of the Malaysia Federation states to dissolve the new nation, and, to intensify domestic vigilance against subversion.

Back-from-the-Grave Biplane Featured at Open House

Victoria Flying Club will stage an open house Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. at Patricia Bay Airport, featuring an aircraft display which includes a 1930 biplane.

The plane, which is older than its owner Mel Price, is a Fleet Two powered by a 160 h.p. Kinner engine. It is believed to be the sixth Fleet Two biplane built in Canada and it has been restored to better than original condition. And to show the latest in private plane comfort, a 1963 Cessna 206 will also be on display. In all, 12 aircraft, ranging from a 60 h.p. Piper Cub J-3 to a Cessna 310 with twin 200 h.p. engines will be on view.

"We will have four planes operating in the afternoon to take people on familiarization flights. The flight will be a short circle of the airport so we can get as many people up as possible," said club director Mike Sealey. Parachute packing demonstrations will be given by members of the club's skydiving team and corsages will be given to all mothers attending the open house. Victoria Flying Club is one of 35 clubs across Canada staging open houses this weekend. The club has a membership of 150 and 25 members own planes. Seven planes are operated by the club. Principle activity of the club is to teach people to fly private and commercial pilot licence standards.

New Pride for a Mighty Land Felt by 1,400 at Times Show

By NORMAN CHIBBENS

The breadth and glory of Canada — from the sweep of the western Rockies to the quiet fishing villages of Nova Scotia — were depicted on the screen of the Royal Theatre Thursday night.

More than 1,400 persons applauded the presentation of Canadian Kodak's Photoscenic Canada — a remarkable assembly of colored movies and slides — sponsored by The Victoria Daily Times.

REPAINTING CAMPAIGN 'ON'

Seven large buildings, including the Eaton's department store and garage complex, and numerous small ones are going to be repainted in the weeks ahead, Victoria special projects planner Rod Clack said today.

He said work is underway selecting color schemes for a large number of buildings in the "tourist row" area where City Hall is campaigning for private beautification work.

Former Victorian Arthur Harris Dies In Portland

Funeral services were held in Portland, Oregon, Thursday for former Victoria resident Arthur Harris.

Born in Victoria, Mr. Harris lived here until nine years ago, when he moved to Portland to work for the Kaiser Co.

Monday he died suddenly at age 55.

He is survived by the widow, Doris; three daughters, and father, Seymour Harris of 4221 Glendenning Road; a sister, Mrs. Olive Southall of the same address, and two brothers, Clifford and Henry, both of Victoria.

Council Asks Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Welfare Council Thursday urged the establishment of a royal commission to study all aspects of social security for which the federal government has a direct or indirect responsibility.

It was a show that made everyone proud to belong in Canada. The cameras roved from Newfoundland to Victoria, from the mines of Ontario to the snow-capped peaks of the Rockies and beyond.

They recorded the whooping clatter of the Calgary Stampede, the classic precision of the Mounties' Musical Ride, the quiet, old-world handicrafts of Quebec — and the old Indian legend of the Thunderbird.

It was, in effect, an arm chair tour of Canada from Atlantic to Pacific which everyone enjoyed.

"We are reminded that Canada is the biggest country in the world after the Soviet Union and China," said Ted Footit of Canadian Kodak, who provided the commentary for Photoscenic Canada.

There was a spontaneous burst of applause when Victoria's famous Legislative Buildings, brilliantly illuminated, flashed across the screen.

But this was simply the western terminus of a tour that showed us the manifold wonders of Canada — great rivers rumbling and foaming through rocky canyons; great lakes smiling up out of dense forests, lonely in their beauty; the vast expanses

'Pay Dues, Make Your Donation'

The United Nations Association has started its annual fund-raising campaign.

The aim in Canada—$60,000. As part of the campaign the Victoria branch has made a special plea to its members: "Pay your dues now and make a special donation."

The voluntary, non-governmental organization spreads information on the work of UNO and also, through UNICEF, supports humanitarian efforts throughout the world.

of forestland stretching on and on to limitless horizons.

In between were the cultures of the cities. But these seemed incidental to the wonders of Canada outdoors. The glories of nature made the show and awakened a reverence in our hearts for this mighty land.

The legend of the Thunderbird was interpreted in a series of beautiful slides showing how Indians credited the Thunderbird with creation of the sun, the moon and the stars — and even the Canadian way of life.

There were shots of tulips in bloom on Ottawa's Parliament Hill; pretty girls climbing the steep hills of Quebec City; the busy bustling streets of Toronto; the nickel mines of Ontario; the gas and oil lands of Alberta and the vast fish and game preserves of British Columbia.

"It gave me a deep pride in my country," said one of the estimated 1,470 persons who saw Photoscenic Canada.

The show has travelled across Canada and was seen by more than 5,500 Vancouver persons at two performances in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Monday.

Railroaders Want Union Merger

CLEVELAND (AP) — Signed postal cards from 45,195 locomotive engineers and firemen in the United States and Canada approve merging the two railway brotherhoods that represent them, one of the unions reported Thursday.

Returns now show a majority of those surveyed favor merger. H. E. Gilbert, president of the BLFE, said. The tallied response included 17,225 of 30,000 working engineers, 23,775 of 38,500 helpers or firemen; and 4,200 of 8,000 Canadian engineers and firemen, Gilbert said.

The other union, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, has been cool to merger talk. Its officers have said nothing could be done before the union's next convention in 1966. Also, the BLE recently launched a membership drive to recruit from the BLFE ranks.

The BLFE has about 75,000 members and the BLE about 65,000, and there is an overlap of about 10,000. Also, each membership includes many thousands of lured and pensioned members.

Gilbert said BLFE have asked for a meeting with BLE officers to discuss a merger proposal, the details of which will not be released in advance. The plan would continue separation of the crafts and continued present insurance coverage for individual members, he said.

A. W. A. LANE
... eyes U.S. market

'Don't Let Tariff Laws Scare You'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian businessmen should strive to get a bigger share of sales in the lucrative United States market. A. W. A. Lane of the federal trade relations office in Ottawa said Thursday.

Canada supplies a remarkably small share of the goods purchased by Americans but could expand that share, he told a trade promotion conference here.

Canada has inside tracks to the U.S. market, including geographic proximity, the similarity of Canadian and American production and distribution systems and the fact that "we think the same, talk the same and do business the same way."

Mr. Lane said "baffling and discouraging" U.S. tariff regulations—in which "it seems there are so many U.S. agencies lying in wait to threaten the Canadian exporter"—should not frighten away Canadians from the American market.

Often the bark is worse than the bite, he said. About half Canada's exports to the U.S. enter that country duty free.

G. F. J. Osbaldeston, Canadian consul and trade commissioner in Los Angeles, said that although "it's tough as heck" to sell in the U.S., Canadians are doing a good job.

Glidden Buys Burnaby Firm

TORONTO (CP) — Glidden Co. Ltd. of Toronto has bought Walker Brothers Ltd. of South Burnaby, B.C., for an undisclosed price, J. W. Fowler, Glidden vice-president and managing director, said today.

The company, which manufactures wood coatings, will operate as a division of Glidden. C. S. Walker will remain as manager of the new unit, Mr. Fowler said.

A major product of the B.C. firm is a stain-coating for plywood which permits wet stacking of wood immediately after coating and eliminates separation for drying.

U.S. Steelmen Eye Alberta Coal Field

TORONTO (CP) — Some of the world's largest steelmakers are interested in the product of the 500,000,000-ton deposit of high-grade metallurgical coal in northwestern Alberta owned by McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd., President J. D. Barrington said Thursday.

Mr. Barrington told the company's annual meeting here that arrangements have been made for actual testing of the coal in steel plants this summer. The location of the coal was not given.

Mr. Barrington said talks are under way with Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd. with a view to exploring favorable areas below the bottom of the Hollinger mine adjacent to McIntyre Porcupine mines.

In reference to the copper-silver deposit on the property of Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. north of Timmins, Mr. Barrington said McIntyre holds 160 acres in the same township.

Miners Claim Steel Merger Bid Sham

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) said Wednesday a merger proposal from a rival union was insincere.

Ken Smith of Toronto flatly rejected any merger with the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.).

Speaking at the annual convention of Mine-Mill's west division here Mr. Smith said: "We are certainly prepared to talk co-operation. But what Canadian worker could have respect for us if we merged or affiliated with the Steelworkers?"

Steel could not fight to keep jobs and secondary industry in Canada because this might conflict with United States interests and Steel was based in Pittsburgh.

He said Larry Sefton, national director of the Steelworkers, made the merger proposal to get publicity as an advocate of mine labor unity. Sefton had sent two letters in February and March—proposing merger talks.

"As far as I'm concerned there was no sincerity and no genuine concern for the workers in this industry expressed in those letters," Mr. Smith said.

He said at the time he had replied to Sefton that Mine-Mill would discuss co-operation between the two unions if Steel would call off raids on Mine-Mill locals. But nothing came of the proposal.

Compressor Bids

NORTH COWICHAN — Council received bids Wednesday for a new compressor and municipal garage. Bids ranged from $3,000 to $5,000 for the compressor, and $20,600 to $21,400 for the garage. Tenders were referred to the finance committee for recommendation.

Small Business Attacks Report

TORONTO (CP) — A number of small businessmen have lashed out at some of the recommendations of the Porter royal commission on banking and finance.

Chief concern of the businessmen is that the ceiling on interest rates for chartered banks might be withdrawn.

"There is no indication that the banks will stay in line," A. M. Perly, president of a local merchants association said.

"After all," he added, "they are charging up to 11½ per cent on loans already."

"If you make all financial institutions into financial department stores, you can bet that with the Canadian public's awesome reverence for banks, they will get 90 per cent of the business."

Also critical of some recommendations was Clifford Ghent, president of another businessmen's association: "I think it's going to make money more expensive to obtain... there's no question about that."

Mr. Ghent said the report was a "mixed blessing" adding that "to a certain extent it will penalize the good risks at the expense of the poorer ones."

By SHIRLEY POVICH
(The Washington Post)

WASHINGTON—One year hence, the major league baseball map will be redrawn to include Atlanta or the mayor of that city will have lost a steep gamble with taxpayers' funds. A $16 million stadium is rising in Atlanta, and so is the hope that the Deep South, at long last, will graduate to big league baseball.

Atlanta isn't building simply on faith. There have been promises, secret ones but by the right people, that either the Milwaukee Braves or the Cleveland Indians will call Atlanta their new home before a new baseball season opens, if Atlanta has a new stadium ready. The challenge has been accepted eagerly.

So eager is Ivan Allen, Jr., the Atlanta mayor, that he asked and won the authority to pay the stadium contractors an $800,000 premium if they hurry the job into completion by April, 1965. Obviously he is proceeding on something more than a child-like hope that some team may have designs on a move to Atlanta.

The mayor knows exactly which team it will be, and he has a written memorandum from the owners that they are disposed to make the shift. He can't reveal which club it is because commissioner Frick would frown on such an endorsement to both the team and the city in which it now plays, but the existence of the memorandum is not secret.

Look for Football's Cards to Move

Also, Atlanta is not building for big league baseball alone. By the fall of 1965, it fully expects to have a team in the National Football League. This would be the St. Louis Cardinals, whose owners have been listening hard to the blandishments of Atlanta folk and their boom-town talk.

Milwaukee's Braves are the probable transferees to Atlanta because Milwaukee is barely on probation this year as a big league city. The new owners who bought the team from Lou Perini, who got out after a steep drop in attendance, were disenchanted with Milwaukee last season when the city which once sent 2,215,404 fans to the ball park (in the 1957 season) turned out only 733,648 customers last year.

The one factor that could derail a move of the Braves to Atlanta would be an unexpected pennant victory by the Braves this year. Atlanta has that to root against, and also in the case of the Cleveland Indians. But despite Milwaukee's strong early showing and the Indians' tentative lead in the American League, no pennant appears in sight for either club.

Eccentric Finley Got Cold Shoulder

The Braves' owners were known to have itchy feet last winter when they issued an ultimatum that the town must support the club in stronger fashion or a move would be made. And that the Indians are not wedded to Cleveland is also known. There is no local ownership to bind either the Braves or the Indians to their city.

Charles O. Finley, owner of Kansas City, also had eyes for Atlanta last winter even while he was negotiating with Louisville, but the Atlanta people gave him short shift. Eager as they are to acquire a big league franchise, they might have abided the eccentric Finley, but not when there was solid hope of joining the majors without him.

The Indians have been casting about for a new home for years and coveted Minneapolis before Calvin Griffith made the trek there. The Indians, who set an American League attendance record of 2,620,670 in 1955, dropped dismally to a mere 562,527 two seasons ago and the slight upturn to 716,078 last season was less than thrilling.

St. Louis Strictly Baseball Town

In Cleveland, there is a special situation that augurs for a move by its baseball team. Sports interest in that city is blanketed by the successful Cleveland Browns of the NFL. Cleveland has become a frenzy of pro football and the Browns, in a mere eight home games last season, drew more fans than did the baseball team in 81 home games.

The reverse is true in St. Louis, which is a baseball town, enamored of its traditional Cardinals of baseball fame. The football Cardinals have not been successful there since their move from Chicago as the weak-kneeders of that two-team town, unable to compete with the Bears.

A new football stadium is a building in St. Louis but it is two years away and, anyway, park capacity has never been much of a consideration to the Cardinals. Last season they were tied for second place in the Eastern Division of the NFL with a 5-2 record, they came up to their biggest home game of the year, against the New York Giants, and fell more than 2,000 below the 31,000 capacity of the park. Understandably, they have eyes for Atlanta.

Parnelli Turns 156 In Speedway 'Relic'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Parnelli Jones hit 156 miles an hour Thursday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, where 150 was considered all but impossible until Jones did it two years ago.

His old front-engine Offenhauser roadster was called obsolete by a lot of automotive engineers last year after spectacular invasions by European road racers Jimmy Clark and Dan Gurney in new rear-engine Lotus-Fords.

Jones did win last year's $500,000 Indianapolis 500 and would have won it the previous year if a hydraulic brake line hadn't worn through.

Player Grabs Lead

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Gregory Gary Player carved a two-under-par 68 Thursday and seized the first-round lead in the $75,000 Colonial national invitational golf tournament.

The little South African made a seven-foot par putt on the final green to move a shot ahead of Tommy Jacobs.

Player, who attributed his fine round to "the best driving I've done in a long, long time," shot a par 35 on the front line, then

Punchless Champs Have Pitching Woes As Well

By Associated Press

Are officials of Los Angeles Dodgers beginning to be concerned with the sputtering start made by the defending world champions?

That seemed to be the big question today following two developments—still another loss by the weak-hitting Dodgers, 2-1 to Houston Colts in National League action Thursday night and a trade report involving pitcher Johnny Podres.

Denied by the Dodgers, the report said Podres, who in his only appearance on April 25 was struck in the elbow by a Warren Spahn pitch and has been on the mound for only two innings this season.

"I know nothing whatsoever about it," said Dodger general manager, Buzzie Bavasi. "I haven't talked to anyone on the Houston club. There's absolutely nothing to it."

There may be nothing to the report but there's no shortage of facts to convince Bavasi that the Dodgers have not been playing championship ball.

The loss to the Colts was their 13th in 22 games and left them six games behind the leading San Francisco Giants. The Dodgers are in front of only the Colts and New York Mets.

The Dodgers have scored only 73 runs and hit only 14 homers—eight by Frank Howard. Maury Willis is the only regular hitting over .300. The team is batting .223, eighth in the league.

Dalrymple's Punch Kayoes Braves

While the Dodgers were battling their own problems, Tom Haller's two-run single in the eighth gave San Francisco a 7-6 edge over Chicago Cubs, Clay Dalrymple's two-run homer on the way to a 9-6 victory over Milwaukee Braves. St. Louis Cardinals defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 and New York Mets nipped Cincinnati Reds 3-2.

The Colts scored in the fifth on a single by Walt Bond, a double by Jim Wynn and Bob Aspromonte's sacrifice fly. Winning pitcher Bob Bruce led off the sixth with a single and came around with the clincher on a sacrifice and Al Spangler's single.

The Dodgers scored their lone run in the seventh on singles by Dick Tracewski and West Parker and a sacrifice fly by Willson who also collected three singles and a double.

Dalrymple, hitless in 22 previous trips to the place, hammered his homer off Hank Fischer following a single by John Herrnstein, snapping a 2-2 tie.

Over in the American League, the first-place Indians overcame the Orioles, 9-4, the Yankees defeated the Senators, 9-6, the Twins beat the Angels, 9-1, and the Red Sox downed the Tigers 7-3.

HE WENT THAT-A-WAY

Futility of it all is etched on face of Pittsburgh catcher Jim Pagliaroni when all he has before him is dislodged cap of player who zipped by as Pagliaroni tried to tag him at plate. Jim had to watch four St. Louis runners scoot across plate in fourth inning Thursday night and that was all Cardinals needed to defeat Pagliaroni's Pirates 4-2 in National League game at Pittsburgh.

WHL May Join AHL—If LA Makes the NHL

SEATTLE (AP)—The Western Hockey League apparently killed one rumor and added fuel to another when it opened its annual

Reports that Los Angeles Blades would leave the league apparently were quashed with an official announcement that "the WHL will operate in the same six cities for 1964-65."

However, persistent rumors that the WHL will merge with the American Hockey League gained credence when the league decided to send a representative to the coming AHL meeting to discuss the matter.

The announcement concerning next year's operation contained a solemn word about Denver Invaders, troubled most of last season by poor attendance and losses reported up to $70,000.

"Denver requested a six-week extension in order to conduct a season ticket campaign. If the club sells 2,000 season tickets, Denver will operate in the Western Hockey League. If the campaign falls short of that figure, other arrangements will be made," the statement said.

Portland, one of the best supported teams in the league, only sold about 2,400 season tickets last year.

The league announcement came after an all-day, closed-door emergency session of club directors called by Al Leader, president of the WHL, to discuss the rumored Los Angeles withdrawal.

Members of the Los Angeles group here said they did not know the source of the rumor, but at one point, Jim Piggott, co-owner of the Blades, said, "I hope it's true."

A story in the Redondo Daily Breeze, a Los Angeles area newspaper, said the Blades had asked for a year's leave of absence, leaving them eligible to move up to the National Hockey League.

Then, the paper said, the WHL and AHL could merge. Cleveland, western-most AHL club, would join the western members—Denver, Portland, Seattle, San Francisco and Vancouver. Springfield and Providence would be dropped from the AHL leaving two six-team divisions.

The WHL has long wanted to become a western division of the NHL, but the only thing to come out of the emergency session in this regard was a statement that:

"Provisions were adopted whereby any city or all six members may apply for entry into the National Hockey League."

DECLINES TO COMMENT

In Montreal, Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, declined to comment on the statement. He did say the Blades had made application for membership in the NHL, but that it had never been considered "because Los Angeles is already a member of a league with which we have friendly relations."

Campbell said he was not surprised Los Angeles decided to remain in the WHL.

The league's terse announcement about next year's operation apparently means Edmonton and Calgary will not rejoin

KEN REARDON

AFTER 24 YEARS

Reardon Resigns Canadiens' Post

MONTREAL (CP)—Ken Reardon ended a 24-year connection with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League today, resigning as vice-president for "business and personal reasons."

"It was a difficult decision to make," said Reardon, reached at home here.

The former great defenseman, five times an all-star, declined to discuss his future plans or elaborate on reasons for his resignation, other than to say he wants to be able to spend more time "with my children in their formative years."

Since retiring as a player in 1950, Reardon has had to travel a good deal as a member of the Canadiens administration. He was an official goodwill ambassador before becoming vice-president and assistant general manager of the club and the Canadian Arena Company in 1959.

He has four children, a girl and three boys, ranging in age from 12 to six months.

BULWARK ON DEFENSE
A good puck-carrier and one of the rushing defencemen, Reardon was a bulwark of the great Canadiens teams coached by the late Dick Irvin in the 1940s.

He missed some of their most successful years because of three years' army service overseas during the Second World War but he was on one Stanley Cup and one NHL title winner, in 1946.

Frequently he was paired with Emile Butch Bouchard to form a hard-checking defence that did rather more body-belt-

COLUMBIA HEARING

Evidence 'Throttled' MPs' Charge

OTTAWA (CP)—Anger flared again today at the Columbia River examination where a professional engineer opposed the 1961 treaty and protocol endorsed by his employer. Some MPs charged that evidence was being throttled.

Richard Deane, chief electrical engineer for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. which is the largest industrial complex on the Columbia in Canada, called for abolition of the controversial High Arrow Dam.

He said he speaks for himself and is on leave of absence. His company testified earlier before the Commons external affairs committee hearing.

He said he feels it is "extremely unfortunate" and unfair that the committee has the alternative of accepting or rejecting the treaty and no chance to suggest changes.

Anger first showed when he attempted to read the names of 24 other professional engineers from the Kootenay district who endorse his brief.

BAN BRIEF

A majority of the committee argued that this should not be allowed, and enforced it with a vote. They also voted against having the Deane brief read into the public record. This ban has applied to all other submissions.

"Our purpose is not to curtail evidence," commented C. J. M. Willoughby (PC—Kamloops) at one point.

Lawrence E. Kindt (PC—MacLeod) said the committee must wake up. It was "throttling" evidence and had spent the first 35 minutes in procedural wrangling.

"What is taking place is a disgrace — an absolute disgrace," Mr. Kindt said when Marvin Gelber (L—York South) successfully moved that the names of the 24 supporting engineers not be read out. Chairman John Matheson (L—Leeds) said the 24, if named, should be available for questioning.

James Byrne (L—Kootenay East) said Mr. Kindt and the New Democrats want to change the rules for every witness. He called the Kindt assertions absolutely false.

Later, Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) objected to criticism that Mr. Deane's testimony was wandering from technical details and said he was getting tired of "these throttling efforts."

Still later, Donald S. Macdonald (L—Toronto Rosedale), who as parliamentary secretary to the justice minister has been a frequent examiner of witnesses, walked angrily from the committee room saying that Mr. Kindt and others were seeking to stop him asking fair questions.

Mr. Deane said that not all the 24 endorsing engineers from the Kootenay district—the area most affected by the proposed Columbia basin power and flood control project—work for Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company. He had been approached by others who wanted to support his views, he said, but had confined the endorsers to those who knew the High Arrow region as well as residents.

He said he differed from Cominco's position but admired the company's decision to let him speak for himself.

The treaty and protocol are an example of subordinating Canadian interests to those of the United States, the Communist party of Canada argued today.

The party opposes the 1961 treaty with the U.S.

PEARSON REPORTS:

Canada Plans Talks on UN Peace Force

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pearson said last night the Canadian government is considering holding confidential discussions with some United Nations member countries aimed eventually at setting up a collective stand-by peace force.

The prime minister said, as a first stage, discussions would be confined to nations which have already taken steps to establish stand-by units for UN service, to be followed later by a more formal approach to other governments concerned.

Mr. Pearson, delivering a Dag Hammarskjöld memorial lecture at Ottawa's Carleton University, was expanding on his recent proposal for a stand-by force drawn from several nations but set up outside the UN's constitutional framework.

He said if the UN is unable to agree on permanent arrangements for a stand-by force "members who believe that stand-by arrangements should be made could discharge their own responsibility, individually and collectively, by organizing such a force for use by the United Nations."

Second Man Pleads Guilty To Saanich Bank Robbery

10-Year Sentence Given Montrealer

A second man today pleaded guilty to armed robbery of the Bank of Montreal's Cook and Quadra branch April 24.

A third man is being held in the United States, and one was sentenced Thursday to 10 years for the $7,300 holdup—accounting for three of the four men believed to have robbed the bank.

Ronald Joseph Dagenais, 28, a Vancouver Skid Row alcoholic with a record of petty crimes, pleaded guilty in Saanich police court this morning.

He had given himself up to Detroit city police after his $1,600 share of the loot was stolen from his girl friend.

Jean Chelaine Robitaille, of Montreal, Thursday afternoon, was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary for his part in the holdup.

KRAFT ARRESTED

And U.S. police and immigration officials arrested Clarence William Kraft, of Victoria, in Atlantic City, New Jersey, on Thursday.

He was picked up one hour after police there were sent his description.

Kraft was standing on a street corner in the downtown area, and was arrested without incident, said police.

A fourth man is still being sought.

Robitaille and Dagenais both gave themselves up, and Saanich detectives do not consider either of them to be the brains of the operation.

BOTH USE DRUGS

Both are sick men—Robitaille with ulcers, and Dagenais with epilepsy. Both men use drugs.

In the dock this morning, Dagenais swayed as he stood and looked sick. He was flown back here Tuesday night handcuffed to Saanich detective George Walton who arrested him in Detroit.

Robitaille winced in the dock Thursday afternoon as Magistrate William Ostler sentenced him to the penitentiary.

BRANNEN ESCAPEE CAUGHT

A youth suspected of a break-in returned to the same scene the next night—and got caught breaking in.

A 14-year-old Brannen Lake escapee was caught just after midnight attempting to break in through the same window of British Importers, 631 Yates, as had been smashed the previous night.

One youth was caught the night before, but one escaped.

City police are now satisfied they have the pair.

The youth was grabbed by Cons. Frank Sepka in the alley behind the building.

He took police to a cache of candy and money hidden on the roof of a Yates Street warehouse.

Both youths have been charged with breaking and entering.

They escaped from Brannen Lake April 24, and at one point were reported armed with hunting knives, ammunition and a 22 rifle from a Nanaimo sporting goods store break-in.

Arthur Mayse

We have in Saanich a fireman by the name of Bob Slater, whose appendix one day kindled a four-alarm blaze in his basement.

He was rushed to hospital—by the department's ever-ready ambulance, naturally—and in due time lay neatly stitched in a Royal Jubilee bed.

Time passed. The bell that ends visiting hours rang its warning. To a veteran smoke-eater, even in a post-operative fog, this was a familiar and imperative toxin.

Out of his bed lunged fireman Slater, while stitches popped and nurses squeaked, his hands groping for the gear of his trade.

The rig must roll, and he with it.

That was quite a few years back. Today, at Number Three hall on Shelbourne, Robert A. Slater is a fireman still. On duty Sundays, cutting grass or polishing metal, and listening for the alarm bell, he watches the cars go by.

"Lucky stiffs!" he grumbles. But he wouldn't trade his dangerous, demanding job for any other.

This we learned when we dropped in at No. 3 for a burning permit the other evening. My companion was gone from the office when I turned with permit in hand.

We found her in the hall, looking up at the big red multipurpose fire engine with an enchanted, and speculative, smile.

"I wonder," she asked, "how one works the siren?" Wisely, Bob Slater kept that information to himself. But he did fill us in on other details.

Like every Saanich fireman, he is required to be proficient in all departments of the service. On one run, he may be wheeling the rig. Next time out, he will like as not be riding the rear step, knees bent and heels lifted to absorb the jolting of a heavy-sprung vehicle at emergency speed.

"You hang on," he said, "and keep those knees bent. I learned that the hard way ... hit a bump, bounced, and jammed my head between ladder rungs."

He had a prompt answer to a question which puzzles many drivers: when an emergency vehicle needs the road, should traffic on both sides stop?

"It should," he said, "although a lot of drivers don't. The cars coming toward us worry us a lot more than the ones we pass."

Bob, whose off-duty home is at 4414 Pat Bay Highway, passed on a few of the time and life-saving tricks a fireman learns.

Hydrants have a nasty trick of disappearing on a dark and rain-swept night. Crews try to keep them clear of brush, but in a fast-growing climate, that's by no means easy.

"So what we often do in the bad spots," Bob explains, "is paint an indicator on a handy power pole. It may be an arrow or a white circle and dot."

"When we're driving on our own time, especially at night, we're constantly memorizing skylines. Knowing the general lay of the land is a big help, especially with all the new subdivisions to cover."

He returned to the office, but was back with a card before we had time to more than wonder if the siren was controlled by a pedal or a button.

On the card, our place and its neighbors were blocked out, with driveways marked and nearest hydrant indicated.

"These help too," Bob said. "We index the cards and we're adding to them all the time."

Superstitions? None, we were told; but there's unease in a hall when the spell between alarms is more-than-average long. The next run is sure to be a mean one—perhaps to a smoke-filled industrial basement that must be searched for possible victims before the fight begins.

Firemen spit black for days after these. Sometimes they come out feet first.

But the call inhalator specialist Bob Slater hates more than any other is the one that takes him to a home where a baby has smothered in its crib.

"Those," he says, "are the ones that hurt worst."

WOMAN FIGHTS FOR LIFE

A woman is fighting for her life in Royal Jubilee Hospital today after a car struck her as she walked with her five-year-old son Thursday night.

Mrs. Sylvia Jean Bridges, 3333 Glasgow, has been in critical condition since she was rushed to hospital from the accident scene on Cloverdale near Quadra.

She immediately underwent surgery for head injuries, but the hospital this morning reported she is still on the critical list.

Her son Stephen was unhurt except for bruised knees.

JUVENILE DRIVER

Saanich police say Mrs. Bridges was struck by a car driven by a 17-year-old girl.

The girl apparently lost control of the vehicle, which was westbound. It crossed the road to the south side, hit Mrs. Bridges and jumped the curb.

A naval civilian fire officer, Alan Day, 1066 Cloverdale, was one of the first on the scene, and gave her first aid until Saanich ambulance arrived.

Mrs. Bridges is the wife of William W. Bridges.

The couple have two other children, Lorraine, 14, and Mark, 18 months.

MRS. MORA ... from Honolulu

U.S. Woman To Run Residences

University of Victoria today announced the appointment of Mrs. Lola Mae Mora as director of the new residence halls for women at the university.

Chosen from several applications for the position, Mrs. Mora comes to Victoria from Hawaii, where for the past three years she has acted as house-mother at Kamehameha School for Girls in Honolulu.

Mrs. Mora attended the College of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Wash.; Western College of Education, Dillon, Mont., and Montana State College of Bozeman, Mont. She taught school in Montana for several years and was associated with Montana State University for two years.

The new residence director will take up her duties in September when the new women's accommodations will open.

The provincial government will dig for water 100 yards from the Pacific Ocean next month.

It will be the second attempt to find drinking water for the Long Beach campsite on Vancouver Island's west coast.

Last summer's attempt was abandoned when well drillers hit nothing but clay.

Campers at the 80 sites above the spectacular shoreline have to make a four-mile trip to Tofino airport and back to get water from a tap.

Provincial parks director Harold McWilliams said today tenders have been called for another drilling contract in June.

"We hope to have water there this summer," he said.

If a successful well is drilled, a hand pump will be installed temporarily, Mr. McWilliams said.

A full-scale water system will be laid out for next summer.

Meanwhile the parks branch has bought 22 acres of privately-owned land in the heart of Kokanee Park near Nelson for $12,000.

Hop, Skip And Jump To New Digs

Students at Craigflower School made a historic move across the school yard today, then rushed home to celebrate the occasion.

Books, scribbles and running shoes were cleared out of desks, lockers and cubbyholes in the old Craigflower School and transported by 375 students to the new brown cement-block building across the yard.

Shopping bags were overflowing but the move was orderly as the 10 classes of Grades 1-7 marched single-file down the steps of the old frame building and up the steps of the new.

Students were given the rest of the day off.

The 50-year-old building across from the 109-year-old historic Craigflower School on the city side of Craigflower Bridge will remain vacant until September at which time it will be used by Grade 3 overflow from Esquimalt Junior Secondary School until new facilities are provided in the district.

For the Craigflower students the move into the new 12-room building will mean the end of the shift system. It will also mean gym classes for the first time in a combination gymnasium and auditorium.

And teachers are looking forward to extra storage space and tack boards galore.

A formal opening ceremony will be announced later in which the school board and Parent-Teacher Association likely will participate. The PTA is the oldest one in Canada, now in its 50th year.

In the meantime, the ratepayers' approval of renovating the police station resulted in planning police garage facilities into the car park building.

Need for proceeding with this work, general satisfaction with the way the precinct is moving along now, and coincidence of the capital budget vote are some of the reasons behind committee's desire to finish off the square by completing the last building complex.

City manager Dennis Young said $75,000 already budgeted for the arcade and an anticipated return of about $45,000 from winter works recoveries could be shaved off the $459,000 figure.

Committee agreed to provision of some $2,500 for installing basic plumbing and other services for an outdoor cafe alongside the theatre restaurant.

Construction co-ordinator Rod Clack said this would allow setting out of canopied tables for about 50 persons in a sheltered corner overlooking the square.

The architectural design of the McPherson Playhouse addition will form a perfect wind-break for the outdoor tables," he said.

Mayor R. B. Wilson, who suggested the idea, said it was well worth trying because it could become an important feature of the square.

Committee awarded H. E. Fowler & Sons a $27,763 contract for construction of the centennial fountain—a gift of the outside municipalities—which will be the focal point of the whole precinct.

Choosing of alternative specifications enabled the committee to bring down the cost from a low bid of $39,000 for the work.

Albert Head Fights Light Industries

An Albert Head District Ratepayers' Association has been formed to oppose light industrial development in the area.

Newly-elected chairman Jim Buchanan, 3828 Duke Road, said the district doesn't want to become the backyard of Langford and Colwood and have to carry all their light industry.

"I think the people want to see our area developed residentially," he said.

He said the organization will try to find out if residents want to remain independent, or join with Langford and Colwood when the question of amalgamation comes up.

He felt most don't want the district to become a municipality.

Auxiliaries Complete Police Course

NANAIMO—Thirteen volunteers who completed a 3½-month training program at the RCMP detachment here were sworn in Thursday as auxiliary policemen.

They are the first group to take the first RCMP auxiliary police training class at the Nanaimo detachment. It is expected another training program will be started in the fall.

The course includes police instructions on criminal law, crowd control, first aid, handling of small arms, traffic control, general police work, foot drill, RCMP discipline and emergency planning.

The program of training auxiliary police began in the province in 1962 as a means of assisting RCMP officers in emergencies.

Members of sister Squadron 409 are also welcome at the reunion says Doug Mitchell of 980 Spruce, Winnipeg. He will provide further information.

A strange new species of fish may appear in Vancouver Island waters if the central exhibit of the B.C. International Trade Fair catches on with sportsmen.

This fish, however, is plastic, powered by electric motors, and operated by a man able to remain fully clothed.

It is a one-man submarine built in Germany.

The baby U-boat differs from other one-man subs in that it is fully pressurized, so there is no need for the pilot to wear SCUBA diving equipment.

It has been tested to withstand pressures corresponding to a depth of 246 feet, but safety equipment limits its diving depth to 100 feet. It is fully instrumented with pressure and depth gauges and a compass.

The sub is almost 10 feet long, with a beam of 27 inches, and it is powered by 12-volt batteries driving a prop.

As well as being designed for the sportsman who wants something different, the sub can be used for all types of underwater inspection work, including ship-bottom and harbor inspections.

It will be on show at the Trade Fair at Vancouver's Exhibition Park from May 13 to 23.

Reservoir Capacity Doubled

NANAIMO (CP)—A $200,000 project to double capacity of the Gerater Nanaimo Water District reservoir was completed Tuesday night.

The reservoir will be flushed and filling will start in two weeks.

The district started last November on the project; which saw the concrete lining of what was originally a 5½-acre earth enclosure.

The flushing is being rushed in order to get the reservoir in use before hot weather increases consumption, officials said.

'Must Honor' Park Claims Says Kiernan

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—The provincial government will not permit wanton cutting of timber in B.C. parks, says Recreation Minister Kiernan.

Asked by the local Chamber of Commerce for a statement of his policy on commercial and industrial operations in parks, Mr. Kiernan replied in a letter:

"Ninety per cent of the public use of park land is confined to 10 per cent of the areas which are readily accessible.

"Crown grant mineral claims and valid timber berths exist in larger parks and, though these were granted by previous governments, they must be honored.

ONLY BY PLANE

"Millions of acres are accessible by plane only and this fact gives special privileges to those who can afford to own or charter planes."

The minister said that prohibition of any commercial operations in parks would raise the question of whether operation of ski lifts or provision of food for sale should be prohibited.
